

ANSELL RECALLED, CROSS-EXAMINED IN BERGDOLL CASE

New Testimony Locates
Draft Dodger's Buried
"Pot of Gold" in Maryland
Instead of West Virginia.

SHARP ISSUE OF VERACITY ARISES

Judge Wescott Denies Ansell Story at House Hearing and Invites Latter Outside to Fight.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 4.—Samuel T. Ansell, former acting Judge Advocate General of the Army, who, as counsel for Grover Cleveland, Bergdoll, escaped Philadelphia draft dodger, was instrumental in obtaining Bergdoll's release under guard from Fort Jay, New York, to search for a "pot of gold" in the West Virginia mountains, was subjected to further cross-examination today before a House investigating committee.

Doubt as to where the "pot of gold" was hidden was cleared to some extent, and, by Ansell's explanation, mountaineers of West Virginia might as well give up the search. Bergdoll, it was told, told his lawyers that the burial place was somewhere in the mountains of Maryland. Its location was not revealed beyond the word of the draft dodger that it "was out from Hagerstown."

John H. Sherburne of Boston, counsel for the committee, knows about where Bergdoll said it was hidden, but there was no intimation that the location would be made public, to become a mecca for treasure hunters.

Ansell insisted that his first knowledge of the "150,000 in gold," obtained from the Treasury by Bergdoll's people, came from the late D. Clarence Giboney of Philadelphia, of counsel for Bergdoll. Answering Sherburne, he said he never investigated the story by asking Treasury officials if it were true. The witness declared he relied on the statement of Giboney and former Judge John W. Wescott of New Jersey. Judge Wescott testified yesterday that he knew nothing of the gold until after Bergdoll's escape.

Obligation to Gen. Harris.
The witness was asked if it wasn't an extraordinary obligation on his part to tell Major-General Harris, Adjutant-General of the Army, that he stood personally responsible for Bergdoll's return to prison.

"It was very unfortunate," Ansell replied, "but I did not think it extraordinary at that time. Gen. Harris did not expect me to guard the man. He certainly felt a degree of security in my statement and that of the other lawyers, leaving active guarding to the military authorities. I carried out my obligations because the General knew I would not make the trip if I had been charged with direct responsibility. I would have hired guards and not have permitted the prisoner to go to Philadelphia and visit his mother's home. I imposed confidence in Giboney to carry out Gen. Harris' instructions."

Answering Representative Johnson, Democrat, Kentucky, Ansell said he realized that his "conduct relative to the escape of Bergdoll is the question at issue."

"Has it occurred to you that a deliberate deception was practiced relative to counsel going with the prisoner?" Johnson asked. "I don't think so," the witness answered.

View of Giboney's Conduct.
Johnson pressed for an opinion on Giboney's conduct.

"Giboney's conduct was irreconcilable with his promises," Ansell answered. "I believe Giboney became a party to taking Bergdoll to the latter's home in Philadelphia out of vanity, self-glorification and a wish to impress the Bergdoll family with his capacity to do things. He liked to do sensational things."

Johnson insisted that Ansell had not kept faith with Gen. Harris because of failure to notify him of plans for the trip. Taking issue with Johnson as to certain inferences drawn from his answers, Ansell exclaimed:

"This thing has borne more heavily on me because of getting Gen. Harris into it than because of the public reproach, which I can stand. 'You speak advisedly when you say you got Gen. Harris into it,' said Johnson. 'No; I submitted the application for release to Gen. Harris, who relied on me. The mere fact that I submitted it only brings me in.'"

Ansell Defends His Course.
Johnson next said: "I don't believe we are going to get anywhere on the question of specific aid you gave in redemption of your pledge, so I'll drop it."

Ansell broke in, declaring it unfair. "So help me, God," he shouted, "I was actuated by only one motive, I did what was going to get me out of the prison. I have no fear of investigation of prosecution."

Ansell said the evidence showed Judge Wescott had more than a friendly interest in the Bergdoll case. "I reiterate," he said, "that Giboney told me he made no move in the Bergdoll case without conferring with Judge Wescott as consulting counsel. It was in the open. Judge Wescott thought that his social and political standing might be dimmed by appearing openly." Johnson brought out that since his resignation from the army Ansell had conducted several cases against the Government.

"I am not going to let public opinion dictate what cases I shall and shall not accept, whether for or against the Government," said the witness. "Bergdoll had the right of counsel."

"Would you have defended Benedict Arnold?" "I am not familiar with the Benedict Arnold case."

"Would you have defended Judge Isaacariot for acceptance of the 30 pieces of silver?"

"There is no reason under the Jewish law why he should not have had a trial."

Issue of Truth Raised and Invitation to Fight at Hearing Yesterday.

The sharp question of veracity arising yesterday between Ansell and Wescott created intense excitement. Called to the stand before Ansell had completed his statement, Judge Wescott, who is 72 years old, flatly denied the testimony of Ansell in two essential details, and declared, with great emphasis, that there was no word of truth in the report that he had been engaged as associate counsel, as Ansell had stated, to help get Bergdoll out of prison after he had evaded the draft for nearly two years.

As the Judge went back to a seat in a corner of the committee room, Ansell, who had heard part of the denial, reiterated under oath that every word of his testimony was true. Just as his examination was about to shift to other channels, Chairman Peters, turning to the Judge, asked if he desired to be heard.

The Judge was on his feet instantly. Moving over toward the table, across from which Ansell sat, and refusing to be seated, Judge Wescott for five minutes let loose a torrent of denial, declaring that Ansell lacked the physical, mental and moral courage to step outside and make the same charges to his face.

During the sugar shortage, sugars were rushed here from all parts of the world. Some were dark colored—some coarse grained—many of questionable quality. But then, as now, women knew that Domino Cane Sugars are of only one quality, the best that can be had in sugars.

about $3,500,000,000 in November. The remaining approximately $20,000,000,000 in bonds, will be issued as fast as the revenue from the export tax allows.

On the bonds issued next December, the 5 per cent interest and the 1 per cent sinking fund charge will be approximately $750,000,000. If, therefore, the $487,000,000 annuity, plus the 25 per cent export tax, exceeds this amount, an additional block of bonds will be issued to absorb this surplus.

It is understood that Germany shall hand over the bonds to the Reparations Committee, which in turn will distribute them among the allies in the proportions agreed upon at the Spa conference—France, 52 per cent, the British Empire 21, Belgium 8, Italy 10, Japan 3, of 1 per cent, and Portugal 2. The remaining 6 1/2 per cent will be distributed among the other allies.

Whether the individual allies hold the bonds in their respective treasuries until redeemed or offer them to their own or neutral purchasers is left to them.

treaty, no matter how many reservations are made. They are apprehensive, of course, that settled questions may possibly be reopened by such a course, but they prefer it to the negotiation of a separate treaty between the United States and Germany. The latter move, they believe, would forever be looked upon by Germany as a wedge between the United States and her associates in the war and would be a source of continuous embarrassment in the next decade, especially since the allies believe their troubles with Germany will not vanish with the settlement of the reparations controversy.

Anxious for Disarmament.
President Harding is just as anxious incidentally to make a move for disarmament as anybody in the Senate. He is as eager to recall the troops from the Rhine as is the average American. He wants to see the reparations controversy settled and peace made with Germany. But the Constitution of the United States purposely entrusted such question to the executive because he is dealing every day with foreign Governments, and there is a time and occasion for these things which cannot be determined by any one of 435 legislators who are not in close touch with happenings in official and unofficial channels. The chief executive has in effect petitioned Congress to let him alone while he steers the ship of state through dangerous shoals.

JUDGE INSTRUCTS GRAND JURORS IN LYNCHING INQUIRY

"No Unwritten Law," He Tells Panel Investigating Hanging of Negro Roy Hammonds at Bowling Green.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOWLING GREEN, Mo., May 4.—Before a crowd that filled the courtroom and listened breathlessly, Circuit Judge E. B. Woolfolk convened a special grand jury this afternoon to investigate the lynching of Roy Hammonds, a 19-year-old negro, Friday night for an attempted assault on a white girl, a 14-year-old white girl, and delivered emphatic and impressive instructions.

"By reason of the very grave and serious import of the matters which are to come before you for consideration," he said, "I will read some of the great principles of government which have stood for more than 100 years as the pillars of civil liberty."

He read sections from the State Constitution, and continued:

Denies the "Unwritten Law." It is your duty under oath to act as a body of inquisition, to determine whether the criminal law of the State has been violated. Let me remind you that the criminal law of Missouri is a written law. There is no such thing as what some people sometimes call the unwritten law. It does not exist, in law or in justice.

"Witnesses may be compelled to testify before the grand jury unless they have some lawful excuse which the Judge of this court will pass upon. You have power to reach out with subpoenas to bring them before you, place them under oath and demand that they tell the truth."

"This most unfortunate affair had its beginning and grew out of an attack made by a negro boy upon a white girl a few evenings ago. After and less than 48 hours thereafter, a dastardly offense. The authorities immediately went to work to apprehend him. So successful were they that in 24 hours they had arrested the man who afterwards confessed the crime. Within 14 hours thereafter, the commission of the crime he had been arraigned and entered a plea of guilty and the sentence of the law was imposed upon him and he was placed in the charge of the Sheriff, to be delivered to a term of 10 years."

Tells of Mob Assembly.
"Within one and one-half hours after sentence was pronounced a mob formed in and about the town of Bowling Green bent upon violence to the law or to the prisoner in charge of the law."

"This mob formed in your community in the open light of day. They moved upon the Sheriff, who had the prisoner at the C. & A. depot, with wide-open, uncovered faces. They approached the Sheriff and demanded his prisoner. Flourishing firearms and deadly weapons, they demanded his prisoner, this poor, miserable, illiterate negro, 19 years of age, helpless and defenseless, that they might vent their resolution to take his life. They got a battering ram, broke down the door, overrode the Sheriff and his deputies and took the prisoner. They took him up the Curryville road, and found a tree upon which they hung him by the neck until he was dead."

Recounts the Jury's Duty.
"You are called upon to determine whether justice has been outraged and despoiled. That is why I read you those passages from the fundamental law of the State. Let us stand for the majesty of the law and for upholding the hands of the officers of the law, by bringing to justice him who sets his face and life against the law. The same law that punished the miserable negro says that those who shall engage in mob violence are violators of the law and it prescribes their punishment. The same authority that punished this assault declares that the men who hanged that negro were guilty of unjustifiable, deliberate, wilful and premeditated murder."

Confession Made by Negro.
A typewritten copy of the confession made by the negro after his arrest was seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter today. In this Hammonds admitted that he followed the girl from a picture show, dragged her behind a church and put his arms around her, but he asserted that he was "just fooling" and meant only to scare the girl.

The negro had been to the same picture show as the white girl. There are two moving picture shows here. Both admit white persons and negroes, the galleries being reserved for negroes.

It was made known that among the first witnesses who would be called at the grand jury investigation would be Sheriff Charles Moore and his deputy, A. E. Rauber, and that the three special deputies sworn in by the Sheriff after the mob had assembled would next be called. These are Russell Bankhead, Sheriff Moore's predecessor; former Deputy Sheriff Jack Motley and Ruby Lee, who acted as the Sheriff's chauffeur the night of the lynching.

Mayor T. S. Smith yesterday forbade the opening of a traveling "Uncle Tom's Cabin" show which was to have exhibited here last night. His stated reason was that, in view of public opinion created by the recent lynching, a performance of the kind might unduly arouse popular feeling.

OPPEIN, Upper Silesia, May 4.—Organized Polish forces, estimated at 20,000, have occupied all of Upper Silesia south of a line running from Koesel to Tarnowitz, with the exception of a few large towns, and are moving further northward, according to information supplied by a member of the interallied representation here.

Today, according to this source, the Poles are marching into Gross Strehlitz north of the line mentioned, in a well-ordered manner, using motor lorries and being supplied with rifles, machine guns and dynamite.

Italian troops at Rybnik, well south in the plebiscite area, comprising a regiment of infantry and two machine gun companies, are surrounded by 3000 Poles, and a pitched battle has been going on for several hours, the informant stated this afternoon.

The Italian known dead are three officers, one of them of high rank, and 12 privates.

German Disarmed by Poles.
The Polish members of the plebiscite police disarmed the German members who were taken across the border, after several of the Germans had been killed it was added. The force itself has ceased to function.

The informant declared the French troops and the British control officer were not offering opposition, and that the Poles had not had clashes with the French. The British officers were said to disapprove of the situation and were threatening resignation. BORAH REINTRODUCES DISARMAMENT PLAN

Fight in Senate Against Administration's Wish for Delay Indicated.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 4.—The naval appropriation bill was increased from $336,000,000 to $496,500,000 today by the Senate Naval Committee and ordered reported to the Senate almost exactly in the form in which it failed last March.

All increases previously recommended were readopted.

The amendment of Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, proposing that the President be requested to call a naval disarmament conference, was rejected by the committee. Its incorporation was proposed by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, and defeated by the Republican majority.

An impending fight in the Senate against the administration's desire to defer consideration of naval disarmament proposals was forecast today by the reintroduction by Senator Borah of his resolution to "authorize and request" the President to call representatives of Great Britain and Japan into a disarmament conference.

Senator Borah also filed a motion to suspend the Senate rules in an effort to pave the way for early consideration of his measure. He and other disarmament advocates plan to press the issue.

Senator Pomeroy, Democrat, of Ohio, also filed notice of his intention to present a disarmament amendment to the naval bill. His amendment would authorize the President to delay the building program six months so as to arrange a disarmament conference between the United States, Great Britain, Japan and such other Powers as the executive deemed advisable to invite.

Should an agreement on disarmament be reached at this conference the President might suspend the building program in whole or in part.

President Harding is known to have communicated with leaders in both the Senate and the House his desire that action on disarmament proposals be deferred because of the present state of international relations.

$2000 REWARD FOR MRS. ELLIS
The Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. today announced a withdrawal of its offer of $2000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Edna Ellis, an employee of the company, who was found murdered on a vacant lot near Glasgow avenue and North Market street Nov. 5 last. The withdrawal of the reward is preliminary to clearing the way for paying the money to the girl's mother, Mrs. Marie Ellis.

All original claimants of the reward, except two boys who found the razor blade with which the girl was killed, have waived their rights in favor of Mrs. Ellis. The company intends to file a "friendly" suit to determine the claims of the boys. Albert Ellis, not a relative of the girl, was convicted of the murder and was sentenced to life imprisonment. He is in jail pending an appeal.

WIFE GIVES OUT STOKES' LETTERS TO NEGRO DETECTIVE

Instructions to Benjamin Harrison Made Public to Show Millionaire's Inquiry Into Past of Mrs. Stokes.

SENT TO DENVER TO OBTAIN EVIDENCE

Negro Investigator Failed to Find What Employer Wanted and Latter Reprimanded Him.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, May 4.—In the Stokes divorce trial yesterday attorneys for the millionaire brought into the ruins of the house of Stokes a miniature representation of the house of Wallace. Attorneys for the young wife brought a thick sheaf of letters signed by Stokes. The house was brought into the testimony in an attempt to fasten Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes into the apartment at 13 East Thirty-fifth street, to link her with Edgar T. Wallace, in an episode of intimacy.

The letters introduced by Mrs. Stokes' counsel and marked for identification, although not accepted in evidence, purported to show the extent of W. E. D. Stokes' crisis-crisis inquiry into the past of the mother of his two children. They were written to Benjamin Harrison, a negro detective in Chicago.

Just before the letters were made public, Stokes' other negro detective—Mrs. Hattie Johnson—was ordered out of the courtroom. Mrs. Stokes' lawyers accused her of signaling to a witness.

Refers to Wife as "Our Helen."
Through the letters Stokes refers to his wife as "our Helen." His order is: "Go to the Bureau of Birth and see if a child was born in about March, April, May, June, 1903 or 1904, to W. R. Underhill or Diggs or Harris, and get all particulars—Helen Underhill or Helen Underwood or Helen Elwood. The last is Mrs. Stokes' maiden name. Her mother later was married to Arthur Miller.

One of the communications, written after a detective had been ordered to go to Denver, gives the following explanation:
"I am surprised to receive your telegram that you were waiting to receive my letter of instructions and you did not know what to do. You know the object of your trip to Denver, to get evidence of party's former marriages and of her being in houses in Denver.

"The general object of the letter (one of previous instructions) was for you to get hold of the old colored cook that was so long with the Millers. You could find her address there under some pretense and find from this cook the correct name and address of the colored chauffeur, Bernard, and then get from him all the information you can, especially as to her marriage and various intrigues she had with other men, Will Myers, Walsh, etc., and then go back and talk with the cook.

"Then I sent you two photographs and you were to find when these photographs were taken. We are advised they were taken from rear of a disorderly house in Denver. You were to go to following places—
"Find out how well," the letter continues, "our party, Jack Chenault, colored. You can find some of the Miller servants who know everything. Also find out regarding Walsh, a very rich man in Denver, who knew our party."

Set to Tracing Saloonkeeper.
During his stay in Chicago the detective was instructed to trace the life of Al Austin, a saloonkeeper. Stokes was not certain he was the man "with whom Helen Underwood lived, and to whom she is said to have been married, and who died Feb. 22, 1916." Later he writes: "Austin looks like our man." Stokes then submits a page from a Chicago directory, giving the various Al Austins, dates, places and other detailed data.

A letter in long hand to the detective in Denver is offered.
"Dear Sir: People in Chicago do not act as quick as they do here. I have waited for certain information which has not come."

"I, Mrs. S. (Stokes) is living at No. 851 Clarkson street. If you have a chance, see the children and write me how they are, and if you have a chance find out from whom and where Mrs. S. is receiving letters."

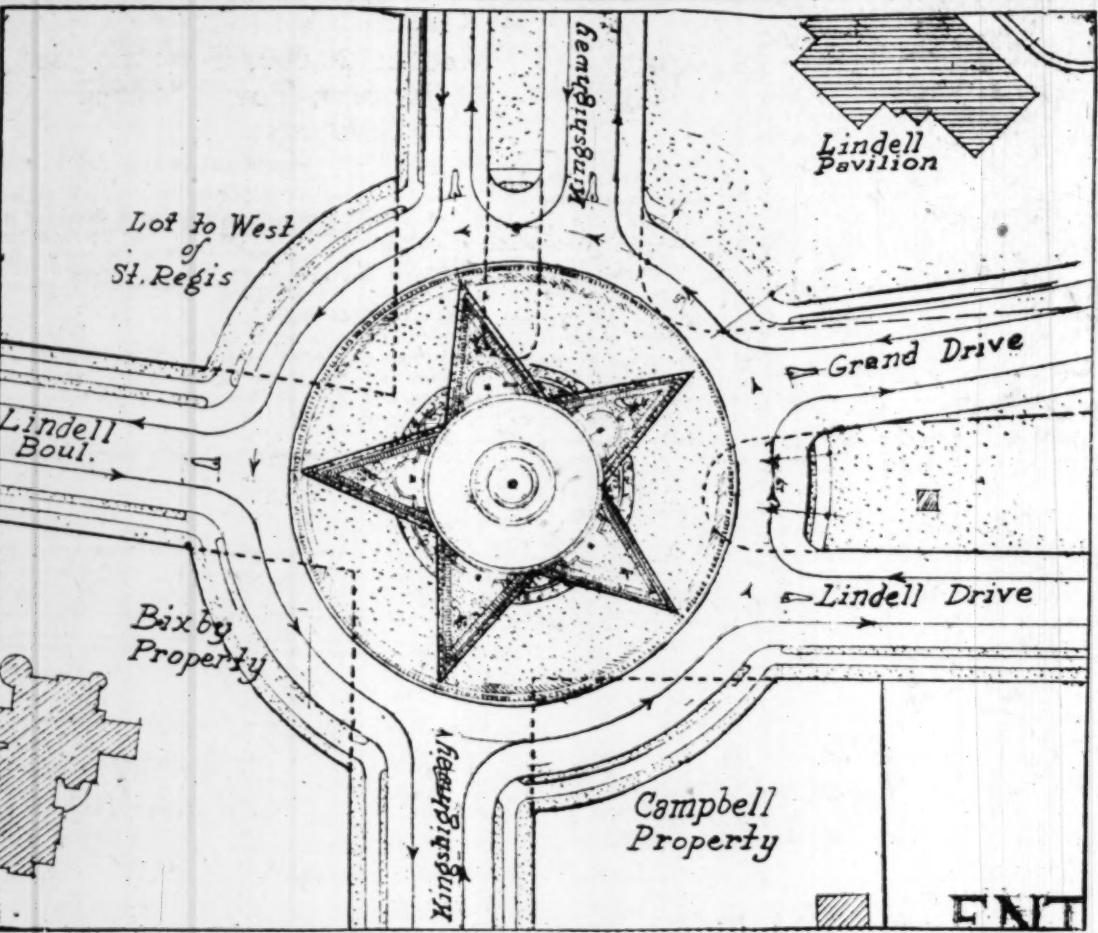

"2. Go to marriage and death department and see if, between 1895 and 1911, any marriages are recorded of Helen Elwell-Underwood, Miller, Harris. See if any deaths are recorded of W. H. Harris, Word H. Nordin, Frank Underwood, Leon Diggs or Tribble & Diggs, vaudeville performers.

"3. Party's stepfather lived in Denver (here follow the addresses). Perhaps at one of these places you might find someone who could tell if party was married and to whom—perhaps neighbors could."

"4. Inclosed are some photos—find out where they were taken and when. The man is Will Myers (one of the alleged co-respondents stricken from the list). It is claimed by some these pictures were taken at rear of disorderly house in Denver."

two letters of reprimand. The first follows:

"Will you tell me why you waited until Nov. 11 for my letter of instructions before going to work in Denver? You arrived in Denver on the morning of the eighth and did nothing until Nov. 11, then spent two days searching records. This all seems a mystery to us. I did not intend to write you at all; you had talked the situation over with me in Chicago. You said you had a brother there and you could get all the data for me from him and had written him. I talked all this over with you in Chicago and I did not think it necessary to write you, but I did the morning of Nov. 1 and mailed letter at once. You apparently have spent two days looking for records which records we already have, and for which we paid $2.

"Information you sent me regarding Mr. Miller is all rot and not a picture of truth in it. He never was in the steel business and he did not die several years ago, and all the money he left was $40,000.

"My particular object in sending you to Denver was to get hold of the colored cook and the chauffeur, Bernard, and you do not seem to have paid any attention to that. You don't seem to have gone to the house and seen the children. You don't say a word about what your brother said. You write me a letter about what some person said that these pictures were not Mrs. Stokes' pictures, all of which we know to be incorrect. We know they are.

"Now what is the use of a man employing a person if he passes his time away, spending $150 and then telegraphing for more money and gets nothing, etc. You have not gotten the address of information. All the information you sent us we have gotten by writing and paying $2. The picture you sent from Chicago is not our Helen, and your talk about Gertrude Gibson Preston is all nonsense and has nothing to do with this case."

The last of the letters begins: "It was a very unfortunate thing for you to show these pictures in Denver, because word has gotten to Mrs. S."

These letters form part of the "evidence" presented by the defense that Stokes was the cause of "a campaign of malicious rumor" that enveloped Mrs. Stokes in Denver.

Martin W. Littleton, for Mrs. Stokes made public these letters. Francis Wellman, for the millionaire, examined four witnesses—Mrs. Anne Doan, Dorothy Bush, a former nurse of Mrs. Stokes; Anna MacIntosh, a negro, and Herman Warendoff.

Reference to "Sweet Young Thing."
Miss Bush told of a note of exonerated of Hal Billig and Mrs. Stokes she had written at Billig's request. She saw nothing.

When she wrote, the witness readily admitted she bore no love for Mrs. Stokes. She was asked why. She thought her former employer "untruthful, hypocritical." Justice Finch ruled out the characterization. Mrs. Stokes, she said, called Billig "a sweet young thing."

Mrs. Doering, mother of A. Gladys Dale, an occupant of the Thirty-fifth street apartment, testified she met Mrs. Stokes in the Wallace apartment house. She had met her previously, she said, at the Hotel Mary, and where she had been introduced by her daughter, Miss McIntosh saw, she said, Mrs. Stokes in Wallace's room at breakfast. She had come to aid Martha Jones, the servant. Warendoff testified he saw Mrs. Stokes dining and dancing with a man who "looks nothing like Wallace" at Rector's. He placed the time as a year before the birth of Mrs. Stokes' son, Jimmie.

MORAL ISSUE CANDIDATES ARE DEFEATED IN OMAHA

"United Seven" Ticket, Headed by Former Mayor Dahlman, Wins

By the Associated Press.
OMAHA, Neb., May 4.—The entire "United Seven" ticket, headed by former Mayor James C. Dahlman, went into office in yesterday's city election by overwhelming majorities. The moral issue and police administration had been bitterly fought out in the hottest contested campaign of the city's history, the losing ticket, headed by former District Judge A. L. Sutton, having raised the moral issue. Dean Ringer, present Police Commissioner, around whom the fight centered, was defeated. Two of the present commissioners, both of whom were on the "United Seven" slate, were elected.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 4.—Charles W. Bryan, brother of William Jennings Bryan, apparently is beaten in his race for Mayor of Lincoln on the face of incomplete returns. A majority of commissioners pledged to vote for Frank C. Zehrung for Mayor had a two to one lead over the Bryan candidates, with one-half of the city precincts to hear from. Bryan probably will be elected a commissioner.

STILLMAN BEGINS SECRET HEARINGS IN DIVORCE SUIT

French Canadians to Help Prove Indian Servant and Guide Is Father of Wife's Son.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 4.—James A. Stillman, who yesterday resigned the presidency of the National City Bank, today resumed in the first of a series of secret hearings his fight for divorce from Mrs. Anne Urquhart Stillman.
It was said at the outset of the hearing today, which is being held before Referee Daniel J. Gleason in the rooms of the Bar Association, that the presentation of evidence would require at least three days.

Several French Canadians from Three Rivers, Quebec, near the Stillman summer camp, are here for the hearing. In this connection it was said that Stillman would produce testimony to support his contention that his wife is the mother of a male child by their former Indian servant and guide, Fred Beaulieu. In addition, it was reported, further charges of alleged misconduct would be preferred against Mrs. Stillman.
It was announced that witnesses summoned by counsel for Mrs. Stillman in her counter charges of infidelity will be called to testify at a later hearing.

ENGLAND TO OFFER RAILWAYS $51,000,000 WAR CLAIM

Bill, Providing for Payment, Will Also Arrange for Grouping the Railroads.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, May 4.—Sir Eric Geddes, Minister of Transportation, announced yesterday that the government had reached an agreement with the railways, by which it would pay them $51,000,000 (normally about $250,000,000), in complete satisfaction of all claims growing out of the various wartime agreements. The government's liabilities originally were put at $156,000,000.

The proposed settlement will form a part of a bill which is soon to be introduced in Parliament, which will provide for a grouping of the railways and which it is hoped will be agreed to by the railways.

FORMER MINISTER ADMITS IT WAS HE WHO ROBBED MAILS

Guy Kyle Reverses Former Statement About $189,000 Theft of Pouch During Trial of Loren Williamson.

At the trial of Loren Williamson, charged with stealing a mail pouch containing $189,000 from a wagon in the rear of the Mt. Vernon (Ill.) postoffice Jan. 14, in progress today in the Federal Court at East St. Louis, Guy Kyle, former Free Methodist minister, jointly indicted with Williamson, but to be tried separately, testified yesterday that it was he, and not Williamson, who actually stole the pouch.

In his confession following his arrest Kyle said Williamson stole it and the first that he, Kyle, knew about it was when Williamson dragged it, two hours after the robbery, into the automobile accessory shop which they conducted in partnership, near the postoffice. The extent of the complicity that he admitted then was in assisting to dispose of the stolen money. Yesterday he testified that he did the stealing but that the job was conceived and planned by Williamson.

Takes Hour to Tell Story.

It required an hour yesterday for Kyle to tell his story in his own way. United States District Attorney Burnside, who is conducting the prosecution.

Kyle said he has been a resident of Mount Vernon five years, and on Oct. 18, last, formed a partnership with Williamson to conduct an auto accessory store and a wrecking garage, in which the "nuggets" were taken from old autos, the good parts being sold in the accessory store.

Shortly after they formed the partnership, he testified, Williamson began to talk to him about the careless manner in which the valuable mail matter was handled between the trains and the Mount Vernon Postoffice. Williamson had been employed in the postoffice, as carrier or clerk, for two years.

The mail was hauled between the Postoffice and the railroad depots by Samuel Moreland, 60 years old, who makes the trip in a one-horse wagon. Kyle testified that Williamson told him that he was easy to steal the pouch when the driver loaded it on his wagon and went back into the postoffice, and suggested that they do it. The evening before the robbery they made the final arrangements, the witness said. Williamson remained at home. Kyle watched until the driver went into the postoffice and then stole the pouch and took it to the accessory store and hid it under a desk. Williamson, he said, silt the pouch and took the money out and Kyle burned the pouch in his parlor stove. He told of the various places where he said he and Williamson hid the money.

Money Is Hidden in Oats.
H. W. Rice, a lumber merchant at Mount Vernon, testified that he negotiated with Kyle for the purchase of several sacks of oats, and that the oats were being loaded to be delivered to him, when postoffice inspectors interfered, and investigation revealed that some of the stolen money was in the oats. The purpose, apparently, is to show that Kyle was not aware that the money was in the sacks of oats, and that

MOTHER AND TWINS BORN BY CAESARIAN OPERATION PROSPER

Babies Ushered Into Existence at Same Time Are Rarities to Medical Science.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, May 4.—Joel Caesar Blake and his sister, Viola Cesareo Blake, each 4 days old, are as healthy, as normal and as pretty twins as have ever entered the world under the sheltering roof of the Ossining Hospital, at Ossining, N. Y.

Yet they are the most remarkable twins that institution ever provided a first home for—and are among the real rarities of medical science—because they were ushered into existence together by means of the Cesarean operation performed upon their mother to save her life, as well as theirs.

Julius Caesar was born in that way, history tells us, and so have many others since, but it is extremely rare for twins to be born in this fashion and for mother and children to survive.

The mother is 40 years old, and had never previously had a child. In addition to all this, she had a weak heart, and there was the gravest doubt in the minds of her physicians as to the possibility of her surviving even a normal experience of maternity.

Joel, Viola and their mother, Mrs. G. M. Blake of Peekskill, are all well, and are doing as nicely as any normally born twins and mother thereof might be expected to do.

Veteran Gives Blood to Comrade.

By the Associated Press.
JANESVILLE, Wis., May 4.—Samuel Clarke, 74 years old, a Burnham Civil War veteran, is recovering from a dangerous illness through a transfusion of blood from the veins of a comrade of the Civil War, W. H. Chesbrough of Beloit, 76 years old, Chesbrough suffered no unusual ill effect following his loss of blood.

It was placed there by somebody else.

Sam Moreland, from whose wagon the mail pouch was stolen, yesterday testified that two registered mail pouches were stolen at the same time. No previous mention has been made of the second pouch, which contained a small amount of mail. It has not been recovered.

Frank G. Thompson, State's Attorney of Mount Vernon, testified that on the morning of Jan. 21, Williamson telephoned to him at his residence, asking if he wanted "dope" on the mail robbery. Williamson asked him to call at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Johnston. Thompson said he communicated with A. W. Hitchcock, postoffice inspector, and they went to the Johnston residence, and found Williamson's brother-in-law, Ed Johnston, at a table on which was a large amount of money.

Mentioned Partner as Suspect.
He asked Williamson where he got the money and the latter replied that he had found it that morning in the wrecking garage under some oats. When asked whom he suspected, he replied, "My partner, Guy Kyle," the witness said. Asked why, he said there were several incidents that caused him to suspect Kyle, the principal one being when Kyle paid $142 in cash on the receipt of some goods. Bills were usually paid by check.

Mrs. Nellie E. Lawson testified she was at the Johnston residence after dinner of the day that the money was found. Williamson returned from his questioning by postoffice inspectors and others. She said he told his wife not to worry, remarking, "I'm not in this."

SPENCER REBUKED FOR NEWBERRY STATEMENT

Lodge, Watson and Townsend Resent His Announcement That Hearings Would Continue.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Senator Spencer got himself into hot water by his statement immediately after the Supreme Court's decision in the Newberry case that the Senate subcommittee, of which he is chairman, was taking in hand its investigation of Henry Ford's charges against the Michigan Senator, though Spencer denied today that he had been "admonished" by Senator Lodge, the majority leader, evidence was forthcoming that Lodge and other Old Guard members of the Senate knew in pointed fashion that they were displeased with his published remarks.

There was considerable milling about on the floor of the Senate during the afternoon by those most interested in the case. Senator Spencer was the center of a number of consultations that appeared to on-lookers in the gallery to be marked by sharp exchanges. He pounded his desk with his fist as Lodge talked to him. When Lodge got through he was taken in hand by Senator Watson of Indiana, who preceded Spencer as chairman of the subcommittee on the Ford charges, and by Senator Townsend, Newberry's colleague from Michigan.

Old Guard Would Drop Case.

Lodge, Watson and Townsend form a triumvirate heading a strong movement of the old guard in the Senate to have the Ford charges dropped. Spencer took the view in his statement, which he made without having consulted any of the leaders, that the reversal of the Newberry case would not affect the Senate's investigation one way or the other. "I believe the whole matter should be dropped," said Townsend. "I can't see any reason for carrying the investigation further."

It was suggested that Ford had not yet had an opportunity to present his case to the Senate. "Ford presented his case at Grand Rapids," replied the Senator. Townsend was asked whether there was any Senate precedent for refusing a hearing to a contestant. "There never has been a case like this," he said. "It has all been threshed out in the courts."

"Mr. Ford was the conductor of the Grand Rapids case. I am opposed to allowing him to continue his prosecution."
Old guard leaders who want the case dropped are saying that Spencer spoke without authority. They declare that the subcommittee designated to pass on the Ford charges went out of existence on March 4.

Spencer Won't Back Up.
Spencer said today that he still adhered to his original view that the inquiry should be resumed, but that the question was one for the Full Privileges and Elections Committee to decide. He said that a meeting of the committee would be held in a few days. Alfred Lucking, Ford's attorney, who is in Washington, has issued a statement insisting that Ford be allowed a hearing on matters which were not covered in the trial. The decision of the Supreme Court, according to Lucking, has no bearing on Ford charges. This is

U. R. WANTS 8-CENT FARE IF WAGES ARE NOT CUT

Men Demand Continuation of Present Pay—Wells Says Higher Fare Will Be Necessary.

It became known today that the Street Car Men's Union will demand a continuation of the present wage scale at the expiration of its present contract with the United Railways June 1 and that the receiver for the railways is of the opinion that if the present scale is continued a reorganization of the 8-cent basis of fare will be necessary to meet it.

The 8-cent fare base required payment of 8 cents for cash fares and the sale of tokens at the rate of two for 15 cents.

The wage situation has not come to formal discussion between the receiver and the men. The union has requested that negotiations be begun, but as yet the receiver has not responded.

However, T. E. Francis, assistant to the attorney for the receiver, yesterday filed in the Supreme Court at Jefferson City a mandamus suit to compel the Public Service Commission to accept the role of arbitrator between the railways and certain of its employees not carmen, a dispute which the commission recently declined to consider. Francis stated that the purpose of the mandamus was to obtain a construction of the law empowering the commission to act as arbitrator in a public utility dispute before the expiration of the carmen's contract, as the receiver desired to submit any controversy growing out of the making of a new contract.

The present wage of the carmen is 55 cents an hour during the first year of service, 60 during the second year and 65 during the third and succeeding years. This scale produces an average monthly wage of $115 for the 5700 members of the union, Edward W. Foristel, attorney for the union, said today.

The present scale was established by the commission last June 1 as arbitrator. The street car fare had been reduced the previous April from an 8-cent base to 7-cent fare whether paid by cash or token. The fare was not changed to yield added revenue to meet the added wage which the commission established for the men and still prevails.

When criticized during the campaign for failure of his subcommittee to prosecute the inquiry, Spencer replied that he was awaiting the decision of the Supreme Court. To the Ford attorneys it appears now that Spencer is acting in good faith trying to redeem his promise to take up the case after the Court's decision, but that he is about to be balked by the desire of the old guard to have the Ford charges shelved.

BOARD DECLINES TO REINSTATE FORMER POLICE SERGEANTS

Application of Mealey and Silverman Denied on Ground That They Resigned Voluntarily.

Applications of former Sergeants John Mealey and Morris Silverman for reinstatement were denied by the Board of Police Commissioners yesterday on the ground that the board had no jurisdiction, in view of the fact that Judge Kiene of the Circuit Court had ruled that they voluntarily resigned from the Police Department two years ago during an investigation which led to the dismissal of two Captains and the resignation of Chief William Young, now one of the Commissioners.

Mealey and Silverman did not submit written resignations, but the records of the board, upheld by the Court, showed that their verbal resignations were accepted.

The board dismissed without prejudice an insubordination charge against Sergt. William Musgrave of the Carr Street Police Station. Testimony showed that Musgrave remarked that Lieut. Gerk was trying to "get" him and that he refused to make a report explaining this remark. The board advised him to co-operate with his superior officers in the future.

The salaries of four automobile mechanics were reduced from $130 to $115 a month. Two of the mechanics are Martin O'Brien Jr., son of Police Chief O'Brien, and Albert W. Verheyen, son of Boniface F. Verheyen, secretary to the Judge-Advocate of the Police Department. Nine chauffeurs, clerks and watchmen whose working hours recently were lengthened, submitted their resignations to the board.

TWO ROBBERY INDICTMENTS

The grand jury yesterday indicted Crato Gentry, 36 years old, of 734 South Broadway, and William Brandels, 35, of 102 Chestnut street, on charges of first degree robbery, assault to kill and carrying concealed weapons. They were arrested Saturday after the saloon of Con Tomiskey, 10 North Fifteenth street, had been held up and the cash register robbed. A second indictment charges the men with holding up Lee Jones, a negro, of 13 South Fifteenth street, a customer in the saloon.

In running from the saloon they are alleged to have brandished pistols at Mr. and Mrs. Minion Davis of 105 South Fourteenth street. Ernest Hawkins, a negro, of 203 North Thirtieth street, was indicted for attempted bribery for offering Lee Jones $50 if he would agree not to testify before the grand jury.

An Exposition and Special Selling of Dresses for Summer Wear

ON the Second and Third Floors, Summer Frocks are in readiness—an assortment so great in number and so varied in style that it beggars all description. Crisp organdies, pert gingham, regal linens and impeccable dotted Swisses flaunt a daintiness and practicability quite beyond the limits of the very modest prices at which they may be purchased.

The Third Floor Dress Section

Presents Alluring Frocks at Moderate Prices

$5.75 $9.75 $14.75 $19.75 $25.00

SO runs the price scale of the clever Frocks on display, but not so readily can the lists of their charming qualities be set down, and not by a mere reading of prices alone are their very remarkable values comprehended.

With materials of a freshness and beauty of a June morning, fine laces and unique embellishments, designers have found much inspiration for ravishing Summertime Frocks.

Dresses illustrated below on Third Floor.

On the Second Floor

Dresses in Great Variety
at Special Prices

Never did gingham and simple voiles, supposed to be cast for the more modest parts of house and porch frocks, assume such high-born airs. Perhaps the very fine quality of their materials gave them courage to affect designs of a cleverness to appear successfully for afternoon as well as morning. And with all their splendid qualities, they present themselves at figures highly gratifying to those who appreciate real values.

There are Dresses

At $2.29 Gingham Dresses of large two-tone checks, made in the reversible Simplex style, with stitched collar and cuffs and three-quarter length sleeves. The colors are blue, pink and tan; the sizes 36 to 46.

At $2.98 Gingham Dresses in checks, plaids and solid colors, some of them trimmed with rick-rack braid and sash backs. Some of the plaids are trimmed with white pique and made in waist-line effect, while others are made in straightline style with narrow white pique fold trimming and small pearl buttons. All colors are represented.

At $3.98 Gingham Dresses in pin checks, medium checks and two-tone plaids, made in double-breasted style with white pique or organdie trimming. Illustrated on left. On sale on Second Floor.

On the Second Floor

At $4.95 Dresses of gingham and voiles, frilled or lingerie trimmed. A number of piquant styles, giving various lines and effects. All excellent values.

At $6.50 Dresses made of fancy cross-bar voile, in white only. These have white organdie tucked vest, collar, cuffs and sash. The pockets are trimmed, and the skirt is tucked and has a wide hem.

At $7.50 Printed Voile and Braelock Gingham Dresses in small figured patterns and checks. Some of these are trimmed with ramie linen. Both long-waisted models with narrow sashes, and those with waistline and wide sash, are to be had.

At $9.95 Dresses made of printed voiles and Anderson's gingham are shown. Some are hand embroidered. All are made on net linings. The colors are mostly navy and browns.

All Dresses are obtainable in sizes 34 to 46. (Second Floor.)

Frocks of Organdie—White, if you will, de-mure as a Breton peasant, with embroidered lace-trimmed apron and reverses—or shall it be of mauve, or of apple green or of orchid? Of course, it could be of dark brown or navy, or it might even display a dotted or checkered fabric to admiring eyes.

Gingham and Linen—Shepherd checks, blue, pink, green, red, black, in the softest and silkiest of gingham, are made up in slim, graceful Frocks in which the exactness of tailoring and the correctness of line are ready evidence of superior garments.

Linen—White bands on soft white voile—brown and white checked gingham with brown linen—dozens of colors combining the heavy and the soft in most effective ways—make Frocks of almost regal elegance.

Voile—The soft cool Frock of Voile is an unassailable Summer favorite. In many, many colors such Frocks are generously displayed.

Both larger and smaller women will find Frocks of proper design and size included in this selling. (Third Floor.)

JOHNSON HOLDS UP
SENATE ACTION ON BLAIR NOMINATION

Asserts Man Named for Internal Revenue Chief Violated State Law in Action in Chicago Convention.

BLAIR HELPED TO NOMINATE HARDING

Californian Also Attacks Him on Ground of Obscurity in Rich Father-in-Law's Family Income Tax Return.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, May 4.—As a result of opposition, led by Senator Johnson, Republican, California, the Senate late yesterday voted to recommit the nomination of David H. Blair of Winston-Salem, N. C., for Internal Revenue Commissioner, to the Senate Finance Committee, with instructions to investigate Blair's qualifications.

The fight against Blair developed principally over his course as a delegate at the Republican National Convention at Chicago last June.

Another objection to Blair, presented by Senator Johnson, concerned questions of income tax payments by corporations, in which Blair's relatives were said to be interested.

Violation of the North Carolina primary law by Blair was said to have been charged in executive session by Senator Johnson.

Blair was chosen as a delegate at a state convention. Later, in a preferential primary Senator Johnson, one of the Republican presidential candidates, received a large majority. In the convention Blair voted for Harding, despite Senator Johnson's claim that his support was pledged to the Californian until released by him. The North Carolina primary law, Senator Johnson was said to have declared, specifically required delegates to vote for the primary choice.

Senator Johnson's Statement.

Senator Johnson issued a statement after the Senate session, in which he said:

"I am not speaking at all about what occurred in executive session. I am opposed to the confirmation of Mr. Blair. My objection is based upon two grounds. First, he was a delegate to the Republican national convention bound under the law of North Carolina to vote for the candidate receiving the majority of votes in the presidential preference primary votes there. I received in the primary three times as many votes as my opponent, Blair as a delegate to the national convention did not obey the mandate of the primary. He violated the law and betrayed his people. He is now nominated to the most important administrative office in the United States. He administers tax, prohibition and other laws. A man who will violate his own State's laws is unfit to administer the nation's laws."

"The second objection to Mr. Blair because of a secrecy maintained concerning income tax returns, 'is involved in some obscurity. Mr. Blair's father-in-law is one of the richest men in North Carolina. He sought, by forming a partnership with his family to lessen the amount of his income tax. He was required to pay, and it is asserted that he did pay, the full amount as claimed by the Government, and the members of his family, as partners, have sought a refund. Some hundreds of thousands of dollars have been at stake. Mr. Blair ought not to be put in a position where he is in the slightest degree connected with funds, due his wife, his father-in-law and other relatives."

Wealthy Father-in-Law.

The father-in-law of Blair is said to be J. W. Cannon, a mill owner. The amount of the tax refund involved in the Treasury Department case is said to be around $1,000,000.

In the Senate's executive session, Blair was reported to have been defended by Senators Snoot of Utah, and Frelinghuysen, New Jersey, Republicans. Chairman Penrose of the Finance Committee, which reported Blair's nomination favorably last week, was not present.

Some Senators attending the session said that, if the nomination had come to a vote without the inquiry being ordered by the Finance Committee, it would have been rejected.

What the U. S. Government, Department of Agriculture, Has to Say About Moth-Killing Qualities of Cedar Chests

(Extract From Bulletin No. 707)

On May 6, 1918, a supply of flannel and 10 adult moths was placed in a Cedar Chest. Ten more moths were added every two weeks until a total of 70 was reached. Two months after the last moth was added examination showed that all had been killed and that no eggs or larvae were present.

Two years later a similar test was made with same results; 30 moths and a supply of flannel were used.

In a trunk serving as a check to which the same number of adults were added at the same time more than 50 larvae were counted on the flannel at the close of the experiment.

The chests do not always prevent the hatching of eggs, but will kill all resulting larvae almost immediately.

MARY'S LITTLE LAMB

There is truth, as well as poetry, in the lines beginning, "Mary had a little lamb."

And the sight of the lamb at school actually inspired one of Mary's classmates to write the immortal verses.

Yet Mary's little lamb was no better than its tender, young descendants of today.

For, as served at CHILDS, they, too, are enough to inspire poetry.

A section also has been reserved for gold star mothers.

Civil organizations are co-operating in plans for the meeting, and will provide automobiles to take wounded men to and from the meeting.

Several speakers have been assigned places on the program, but an opportunity will be offered for any person at the meeting, whether of the legion or not, to express his opinion and give facts that have come to his observation.

CONCORDIA CHORUS ENTERTAINS

The Concordia Seminary students' chorus of more than 100 male voices gave a well-selected program before an audience which filled the Odeon last night. The selections included some of a sacred character, appropriate to the ministerial calling of the singers, and others of a lighter sort. The best rendered of the numbers were Farmer's sonorous "Gloria," in Latin; Longfellow's "Arrow and the Song," and Adolf Weidig's "Horch Auf," sung in German. "The Lord of the Dunderberg," a legend of the Hudson River, was the longest of the vocal numbers. Adolf Smukal, a student violinist, furnished the only variation to the choral program, playing Vioux-temp's "Fantasie Caprice." Frederick Fisher conducted the chorus.

MURDER WITNESS SLAIN BY SHOTS FROM AUTO

Albanian Restaurant Keeper Killed in Front of 510 Elm Street at 1:40 A. M.

Pandil Gorgo, known as Peter George, an Albanian, 40 years old, one-third proprietor of a restaurant at 1105 Chouteau avenue, in the district infested by the "Cuckoo Gang," was shot and killed at 1:40 a. m. today on the sidewalk in front of 510 Elm street. He had just stepped from a black touring car, in which three other men were riding, and the shots are believed to have been fired by someone in the car. He had been riding in the car since he closed his restaurant, 20 minutes before.

At the time of the murder of George Owens, who was killed near the restaurant March 27, Gorgo said to policemen that he could identify a man whom he suspected of committing the murder, if the man should be arrested. He said the man had been in the restaurant a few minutes before, and had obtained $1 from him, by threatening to carry away the cash register.

Possible Motives Investigated.

Gorgo's promise to identify the man, if he should be arrested, became known in the neighborhood. Following the coroner's inquest, an order was issued for the arrest of James Donnelly, 24 years old, of 1035 South Twelfth street, son of a city fireman. He has not been found.

The police are trying to find further facts which may indicate whether the killing of Gorgo was in any way connected with the Owens case. Another possible explanation is furnished by a slip of paper in Gorgo's pocket, on which was written "Mickey the Blonde." This may point, policemen say, to some jealousy or quarrel over a woman.

Gorgo lived at 2615A Market place. He and a brother, whose name is given as Pedro Gorgo, came to St. Louis in 1912, and Pandil Gorgo has made one visit since that time to his wife and two sons, who live in Albania. He has planned recently, according to his brother, to send for his family, as his older son will soon be of military age. For this purpose he had saved $1277, and two savings account books, totaling that amount, were in his pocket when he was killed.

Woman Employee Questioned.

Gorgo's partners in the restaurant business, Simon George and Tony Lazan, said to policemen that they left him in the restaurant last night and went home. From a woman employee in cleaning the place it was learned that he closed the restaurant at 1:20 a. m., got into an automobile which stopped in front of the place. He said to the woman, as he left, "I'm going out for a ride with my cousins." Gorgo's brother said, when told of this remark, that the word "cousin," in the usage of his native country, was applied to any friend or acquaintance. Gorgo has one cousin here, he said, but he is a man past middle age and of quiet habits.

Persons who saw the automobile on Elm street, before or immediately after the shooting, told a story which caused the police to conclude that Gorgo was shot as soon as he had stepped out of the car. Two bullets entered the left side of Gorgo's body, near the armpit, and two more shots missed him. The first shot was followed by a pause, and then three shots were fired in immediate succession.

When the car started from the place it was driven so recklessly that it almost ran into the Broadway Building. The car went north on Broadway.

Sunday was the Greek Easter, and the celebration of the festival has been carried on since Sunday by some residents of the neighborhood.

HUGHES RESIGNS AS
G. O. P. STATE CHAIRMANDr. E. B. Clements of Macon
Nominated by Lloyd, Is Elected Party Head.By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 4.—J. G. Hughes of Macon, Mo., State Banking Commissioner under appointment of Gov. Hyde and chairman of the Republican State Committee since last August, at a meeting of the State Committee here today resigned the chairmanship. He had previously announced that he would do so.

Dr. E. B. Clements of Macon was elected to succeed Hughes. The name of Dr. Clements, who was the administration choice, was placed in nomination by Lieutenant-Governor Lloyd, who was in the committee on a proxy. Thirty-three of the 64 members of the committee were represented by proxies, most of them in the hands of friends of the administration.

Don C. McVay of Trenton, primary campaign manager for Hyde, was the only one regarded as an administration supporter who was opposed to the selection of Clements.

Hughes was selected as State chairman after the primaries last August, succeeding W. L. Cole of Union, who resigned. No salary attaches to the chairmanship. As State Banking Commissioner Hughes receives $3500 a year and after June 20, when the Governor's consolidation bills go into effect, he will get $5000.

Gov. Hyde addressed the committee meeting, which was in the Senate chamber. He declared that partisans had greatly misrepresented appropriations by the Legislature in their efforts to discredit his administration. He asserted that, instead of $31,000,000, which, he said, Democratic partisans had represented as the total appropriations, the total for the general revenue, exclusive of duplications and amounts withheld by vetoes is only $15,583,000.

Hyde also declared that the work of the State Board of Equalization also has been greatly misrepresented. "If you believe every county and town should pay its fair and just proportion of its taxes according to its true value, we can justify every move of the Board of Equalization," he said. "If you believe discrimination ought to be permitted, as between counties, as between cities, or between individuals or classes of property, then we cannot justify its actions."

Hughes said before the meeting that the principal purpose was to discuss the attitude to be taken towards the Democratic State Committee's proposal to submit the administration's consolidation measures to referendum. He said that neither he nor the Governor had definite ideas or wishes to present at the meeting, but preferred to hear those of the committeemen and members of the Republican Women's State Committee.

INJUNCTION AGAINST DOCTOR
MODIFIED BY COURT OF APPEALSDr. J. A. Youngman of Sappington
Can Now Make Calls Within Five Miles of Dr. L. A. Habig's Office.

The St. Louis Court of Appeals yesterday modified an injunction issued in the Circuit Court in the case of Dr. Louis A. Habig, 5817 Gravois avenue, against Dr. Jacob A. Youngman of Sappington, Mo. The original order prohibited Dr. Youngman from opening an office for the practice of medicine and surgery within a five-mile radius of Dr. Habig's office, and also from making any professional calls in the district or from treating patients in his office at Sappington who may live within the five-mile radius.

Dr. Habig alleged that he bought the Gravois office and residence from Dr. Youngman on condition that the latter refrain from opening an office within a radius of five miles for a period of five years. He also was not to practice in that territory, it was alleged. Dr. Youngman shortly thereafter opened an office at Grand and Lafayette avenues, within the five-mile limit. Subsequently he moved to Sappington, after tendering to Dr. Habig the fees he had received in the Grand-Lafayette practice, but he insisted he still had the right to make professional calls in the Gravois avenue territory and also to treat patients living in that district who called at his office in Sappington.

The Circuit Court ruled against him, whereupon he appealed to Court of Appeals, which decided that the lower court exceeded its jurisdiction and modified the order so as to permit Dr. Youngman to make professional calls in Dr. Habig's district and also to treat patients at his office who come from there.

City News in Brief

POLICE ITEMS

MRS. ROSE BOTTO, 45 YEARS OLD, proprietor of a hotel at 203 North Thirtieth street, fired three shots in the air from a hotel window at 9 o'clock last night to attract the police when two men described as under the influence of liquor insisted on forcing their way into a room at the hotel. When policemen arrived the men had disappeared.

SIX MEN, ALLEGED TO BE DRUG users, were arrested in a room at 230 North Fourteenth street at 8 o'clock last night. One of the prisoners, Michael Hark, 36 years old, the police say, was in possession of cocaine which he was administering to others in the room. All were held for the United States authorities.

WHEN MISS AGNES SMILEY OF 700A North Whittier street reported to detectives that a diamond ring had disappeared from her purse during a party at her home, Monday night, a youth was arrested. After he had been held several hours Miss Smiley informed the police another youth had returned the ring, telling her it had been taken as a joke.

MAY 11 TO BE FLOUR DAY

Wednesday, May 11, has been designated "Flour Day," when citizens will be asked to make contributions for the Near East Relief campaign. Mayor Kiel has issued a proclamation urging citizens to make special contributions.

A barrel of flour will sustain a Near East orphan for one year. St. Louis' quota of the 110,000 children cared for by the Near East Relief is 2500 orphans. The local relief committee will endeavor to obtain 15,000 barrels of flour as St. Louis' quota. The work of the Near East Relief Committee is chartered under an act of Congress. It was established before the war by missionary societies of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish churches and was taken over by the Near East Relief Committee during the war. It is planned to put this work on a permanent basis for 10 years.

78 Homers in 21 Playing Days Is 1921 Swat Mark

This Figure More Than Doubles Performance of Last Year, Which Set a Record.

NINE MADE IN ST. LOUIS

Phillies' Band Box Park Leads With 17 Circuit Drives, Thus Far.

Batters in the two major leagues are out to establish new records in the matter of home runs this season. In the first three weeks of the campaign there have been 78 homers. With just 21 playing dates past, this is an average of 3.5 home runs every day. This mark is far ahead of the 1920 record. In the same time last year, there were only 38 four baggers, and 1920 was considered a year for circuit wallows.

The National Leaguers have it on those in the A. L. to date. In the Heydier circuit there have been 44 four-baggers against 34 in the A. L. Last season it was 22 in the A. L. and 16 in the National.

The clubbers have picked on the "band box" park of the Phillies, as 17 four-base clouts have been hit on the home lot of Bill Donovan's crew this season. This is one more than has been swatted at the Polo Grounds by the American and National League teams combined.

Nine Home Runs Made Here.

St. Louis fans have seen nine circuit drives this year. The A. L. batters who hit them at Sportsman's Park were: Slater 2, Smith, Sewell, Gardner and Mostil, while Hornsby, Schultz and Wingo in the N. L. have ripped out four-baggers here.

The home runs so far this season:

DISPUTE IN OHIO TOWN

OVER BETTING ON RACES

CLEVELAND, O., May 4.—Although a common pleas court injunction issued yesterday afternoon restrained him from enforcing the law against betting on two of yesterday's events at the Chagrin Falls race track, Mayor George I. Burton of that village states that he will call a meeting of the Village Council at noon today from which he will ask new authority to employ special police and have them on the track in time to prevent the making of bets on today's races.

WEBSTER HIGH SCORES

FIRST COUNTY VICTORY

Webster High won its first County High School League game of the season yesterday, defeating Kirkwood, 9 to 1. Gene Vierling allowed only three hits, while his teammates obtained six. Vierling is pitching in place of "Brick" Williams, who has been declared ineligible by the Webster School Board.

The Clayton-Kirkwood game, scheduled for Friday, will be played tomorrow afternoon instead.

Sinclair's Oil Millions Stand Back of This Derby Candidate

GREY LAG.

THIS son of Star Shoot-Miss Minnie started 13 times as a 2-year-old, winning four times, running second five times, third twice and unplaced twice. His best race was his last, a mile event, in which he was beaten a length by Tryster at Louisville, forcing the son of Peter Pan to travel the distance in 1:38 2-5. In this race Grey Lag carried 122 pounds and was beaten a length, with Behave Yourself third.

Three Horses Receiving Bulk of Play, in Future Derby Wagering

Half a Dozen Good Horses, However, Have a Real Chance to Bowl Over the "Big Three," if Favored by the Luck of Racing—Two Fillies Figure Strongly.

LOUISVILLE, May 4.—Although new Derby arrivals are coming into the spotlight of public attention daily, three potential winners of the forty-seventh Kentucky Derby, to be run off here Saturday, are getting most of the preliminary speculation in the "future" books. They are Tryster, Leonardo II and the filly Prudery. Black Servant is quoted at 5 to 1, but it is doubtful if there is much support of this horse, despite his surprising victory over Leonardo in a recent race at Lexington.

The field at this time promises to be large, as fully a score of candidates are being actively considered and of these not more than ten appear to have outside hopes of beating the six or seven outstanding candidates.

Besides the four mentioned above, the filly Careful, Bon Homme, stable mate of Leonardo, Grey Lag and Star Voter appear to have chances if accidents of racing happen to any of the "big three."

Sixteen Starters.

Sixteen horses are regarded likely to start. Thirteen, in the opinion of turf writers, will be given top impost of 126 pounds and the remainder likely will carry 121 pounds in the struggle of a mile and a quarter for a stake which carries $50,000 in added money.

Recent workout of Derby candidates, and performance in races at Lexington, today moved sport writers and turfmen largely to agree that the probable Derby contenders with weights and jockeys would include:

Horse	Jockey	Weight
Tryster	Kummer	126
Prudery	Ambrose	121
Leonardo II	Schuttlinger	126
Bon Homme	Robinson	126
Black Servant	Barret	126
Behave Yourself	Lyke	126
Careful	Turner	121
Grey Lag	Gardner	126
Coyne	Garner	126
Uncle Velo	Pool	126
Muskallonge	Carroll	126
Billy Barton	Connelly	126
Star Voter	Butwell	126
Nancy Lee	McAtee	121
Baby Grand	Greenstein	126
Touch Me Not	Guiletta	126

Yesterday's Workouts.

Black Servant and Behave Yourself breezed the full Derby distance in a trial today in 2:11 3-5. Star Voter worked a half mile in 49 2-5, which was regarded as an impressive tryout. Tryster and Broomspun worked a mile and a quarter together. The former finishing well in advance of his stable mate in 2:11 2-5. Prudery went a mile in 1:47 4-5 and finished well in hand.

To the winner the Derby will be worth more than $25,000; to the owner of the second horse will be paid $10,000; the third $5,000 and the fourth $2,000.

One of the outstanding features of the situation is that two fillies, Prudery and Careful, are receiving serious attention from the form followers, notwithstanding that in 46 years, Regret was the only female to gain a place in the Derby hall of fame. At this time of the year the sex is supposed to be below best form.

Careful's Class Proven. Careful won a great race at Havre

Browns to Meet Tigers Tomorrow

Disastrous Tour Attributed to Weak Pitching and Lack of Timely Hitting.

Back from a disastrous road trip on which only two of the nine games played were won, Manager Lee Fohl and his Brownie squad returned to St. Louis yesterday and were sent through a long drill at Sportsman's Park during the afternoon. Another session is scheduled to be held today, prior to the first game of a long-at-home stand, which opens tomorrow with the Detroit Tigers as the opponents.

Lack of base hits when needed and some weak pitching were the main causes of the team's failure on foreign soil.

When asked if any players would be released, Business Manager Quinn said: "No, we are still looking for some."

Billiken Jrs. Win Again.

The St. Louis University High School nine won its sixth straight victory yesterday afternoon when it defeated Maplewood High, 13 to 6, on the university campus. The Billiken Juniors play Ranken Trades School on the same diamond tomorrow.

Cleveland Ties For Leadership Of Prep League

Victory Over Yeatman Puts South Siders Even With Central High Nine.

The Cleveland nine added another victory to the list, yesterday afternoon, when they defeated Yeatman 8 to 5. The game was a regular interscholastic contest played at High School Field. By this victory Cleveland tied with Central for leadership of the league, while Yeatman dropped to third place, with Soldan, McKinley holds the middle rating.

The game was slow throughout. Cleveland took a four-run lead in the first inning, when Conway walked a homer with the bases full. They added four more tallies and held the lead during the entire game. Yeatman got only one hit before the fifth inning, when Deffaa, with a snail on first and third, pulled a balk, allowing Harding to score. The next inning C. Hannegan and Cincinnati scored, aided by an error of Pickering's and a single by Castens. Streammel scored in the seventh on a sacrifice by Schurr and Cincinnati added the final tally the next inning, when Castens singled.

Deffaa Pitches Entire Game.

Deffaa pitched for Cleveland during the entire game, but Streammel was replaced by Mason. In the seventh, after he had walked nine and fanned seven, Ewald replaced Steinman at short when he became sick in the fifth inning.

About 500 people saw the game. The Cleveland band played between innings.

British Champion Defeats Cutting Three Straight Sets in Title Final.

LONDON, May 4.—E. M. Baerlein, the British court tennis champion, successfully defended his title against C. Sydnam Cutting, the American challenger, at the Queen's Club, here today, defeating Cutting in three straight sets. The scores were 6-5, 6-4, 6-4.

Cutting had seasonally vanquished all opponents in the matches to decide who should meet the champion in the final contest for the title, but Baerlein's steadiness and brilliant play were too much for him.

Tiger Nine Opens
Important Series
In Kansas Today

Games With Jayhawkers and Aggies Will Do Much to Decide Valley Title.

The University of Missouri nine, leader in the Missouri Valley Conference championship race, opens its four-day stand in Kansas today, a trip which will either result in a long lead for the Tigers or a muddling of the Valley standings. Today and tomorrow Coach Miller's men face the University of Kansas team, while Friday and Saturday they meet the Kansas Aggies in Manhattan.

Recent reports from Columbia announced that Pruitt and Murphy, the Tigers' star battery, had decided to leave school. If this is the case, the State school club will be greatly handicapped for a four-day stand, as Smith is the only other reliable twirler on the squad.

Oklahoma is the only conference team which will not figure in this week's play. Washington starts its Drake at Des Moines, Friday and Saturday and Iowa State at Ames next Monday and Tuesday. Nebraska and Ames tie up at Ames on the week-end days.

Kansas Strength a Surprise.
The strength of Kansas has been something of a surprise this season, as Coach Allen had only three voters from last season to serve as a framework for this year's varsity. However, the Jayhawkers have taken four of their five contests, having dropped the opener to Oklahoma. Consequently they may give the Tigers some trouble.

Washington figures to come back from its Iowa invasion with four more victories. Drake may give a little trouble, as Pitchers Goodie and Nigemeyer have shown some improvement since the Bulldogs dropped a pair at Francis Field early in the season. Drake hit well in the first game here, but was held without a safety by the Parkway flingers in the second game. Ames had practically nothing and should present very little difficulty.

If Missouri and Washington are victorious on their trips this week, the Valley championship will be decided by the series between the two teams at Francis Field May 13 and 14. This will probably be a three-game affair as one of the games scheduled for Columbia last month was postponed on account of rain.

This Week's Schedule.
May 4—Missouri at Kansas.
May 5—Missouri at Kansas.
May 6—Missouri at Manhattan; Washington at Drake; Nebraska at Ames.
May 7—Missouri at Manhattan; Washington at Drake; Nebraska at Ames.

Kansas	4	1	.800

WRAY'S COLUMN

The Fitness of Dempsey.

DEROGATORY stories concerning Dempsey's physical fitness have been circulated for some months, and recently have been given some credence. The assumption in all cases was that Dempsey had traveled "the pace" and was but a "shell of his former self." The corollary that he would prove a "mark" for Georges Carpentier naturally was found appended to all such reports.

But don't sink the family plate on Carpentier, because of the belief that Jack is all in. Stories are just stories, after all; and they expand greatly in the repetition.

In the old baseball days, through the magnifying aid of repetition, a baseball player could have purchased a full-grown jag for a dime. For example: Bill Jones tells his friend: "I had a glass of beer with Jack Powell last night." That may have been all that either had; but here is the way it was usually transformed. Jones' friend tells Bill Smith: "Bill Jones and Jack Powell were licking 'em up last night." Smith tells Brown: "Powell had an awful soxse on last night," and Brown tells White: "Jack Powell is drunk every night," etc., ad infinitum.

Deterioration Is Too Sudden.

BUT even if Dempsey has yielded somewhat to the fleshpots, to ask one to believe that he has become "a mere shell" in two years is going some. It took John L. Sullivan 10 years of world's record booze-fighting to bring himself to physical unfitness and even then he made Corbett go 21 rounds to beat him.

If Dempsey was not himself against Brennan he WILL be himself against Carpentier, barring ills to which flesh is heir.

Another Unsolved Mystery.

WHO struck Otto Fink? Who struck Billy Patterson? In the list of mysteries that will never be solved.

According to a recent announcement, investigation by the Municipal Athletic Association committee of the riot that followed the soccer game at Sherman Park between the Schumachers and the St. Louis, some weeks ago, has been closed without the identity of the culprits being known positively to more than 50 or 60 persons—of which number none could be induced to testify.

Otto Fink, who was one of several persons decorated facially by the artistic punching of the rioters and their sympathizers, accused one player definitely at first and then retracted. Charges were preferred by the Schumacher management, but after weeks of endeavor none of the witnesses—several were women—could be induced to take the stand.

The indictment in passing, left a black mark on Fink's eye (which soon faded out), and another on the Municipal A. A.'s escutcheon which will not so easily be removed. It is no credit to the investigators or to the prosecutors that from among 3000 witnesses, including a policeman, who was struck, they could not obtain one to testify.

The incident, as it stands, leaves the impression on municipal athletes that a free-for-all fight can be got away with; and there will be no surprise if it is attempted again.

Rough on the Official Scorer.

TRIS SPEAKER is making trouble for the American League's scoring staff. It's rare that Tris doesn't have from six to a dozen extra men in his lineup during the course of each game and on one occasion this year the box score showed 23 men in the Cleveland entry. Baseball law allows Tris to carry only two more players in midseason.

In a word, Tris is the "shiftest" manager in the league. He will shift players if a rival manager even looks at the batting order and he has the men to do it with.

Many have questioned the advisability of frequent shifting whenever a pitching change takes place; but the figures back up Tris in his policy—although the overworked official scorers do not.

Thus far this season the batting averages strongly support the Speaker policy, as follows:
Left-hand hitters against right-hand pitching: Johnston .378, Smith .360, Jamieson (seven games)

Arbitration Board Makes Cut of $4.35 a Week in Four Major Trades.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, May 4.—The Arbitration Board whose decision affects the livelihood of some 12,000 members of the printing trade in Chicago, today announced a reduction of $4.35 per week for each of the four major crafts.

The compositors were reduced to $46.65, pressmen to $47.65, feeders to $39.65 and bookbinders to $42.15 a week.

This scale applies especially to a week of 48 hours, according to Harry G. Cantrell, commissioner of industrial relations for the Franklin (closed shop) division of the Franklin Typothetae of Chicago.

The board chosen to sit in this case consisted of nine members, four of whom were chosen by the employers, four by the unions and the ninth member as "arbitrator" by the eight others.

12 Per Cent Reduction in Pay of Pressmen in New York.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, May 4.—A cut of 12 per cent in wages of cylinder and job pressmen, press assistants and paper handlers employed by the book and job printers trades here, was announced yesterday by a committee on arbitration, approved by both employers and employees. The cut was based upon the decline in living costs.

The committee collected statistics and reached the decision in the face of the employers' demand for a cut of 25 per cent and the workers' demands for a weekly increase of $7.

The arbitration contract between these two groups of employers and employees provides for a semi-annual wage readjustment, based upon the cost of living and the economic condition of the industry.

The cut becomes retroactive from April 1 last.

Glens Falls, N. Y., Pressmen Announce They Will Resume Work.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., May 4.—The first break in the strike of printers and pressmen in the plants of the Post-Star and the Glens Falls Times came last night, when the newspaper pressmen announced they would return to work under the same conditions which prevailed when they went on strike Sunday.

LOCAL UNION BARS PRINTERS IMPORTED TO BREAK STRIKE

Five of the nonunion printers brought here by master printers to take the places of employees, who are demanding a 44-hour week, applied yesterday to Typographical Union, No. 8, for admission, but were rejected as incompetent, Secretary Coombs of the union stated today.

The information at union headquarters is that about 50 nonunion printers have arrived here, mostly from Chicago.

These men have been scattered among about 15 plants which are trying to do some work. The plants are being picketed by union printers, who explain the situation to the strike-breakers and try to get them to leave.

Secretary Coombs said today that about 140 firms have signed the 44-hour agreement, leaving only about 35 that are standing out for the 48 hours. In addition to the former union plants that are closed, there are a number of "mixed" shops, employing union men in some departments and nonunion in others, which are unable to operate because the union employees are joining in the strike.

MEMORIALS MAY BE DELAYED

Bids on construction of the two memorial buildings which are to complete the first Washington University quadrangle, for the School of Law and the School of Commerce and Finance, are being received by James F. Jamieson, the architect. The figures may be unacceptable, owing to high prices of materials and labor, and it is believed that work on the structures will not start in time for their completion this year.

In view of this, with the imperative need for additional classrooms and offices, an addition is to be made to Biology Hall, the temporary building erected last year on the north side of the campus.

Elderly People Need This Remedy in Medicine Chest

To relieve chronic constipation, always keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin handy for use when needed.

NEARLY all people as they advance in age suffer from chronic constipation. Many, however, are indifferent to the laxative they use, on the theory that "they are all alike." That is a great mistake.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, for example, is a mild, gentle liquid laxative, and it does not lose its effect with repeated use. It so trains the bowel muscles that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with.

A sixty-cent bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last many months. The prescription was written thirty years ago by Dr. W. B. Caldwell, a well-known family doctor, who is himself now in his 82nd year and can appreciate what chronic constipation must mean to elderly people; how it brings on headaches, colds, loss of appetite and sleep, heaviness and a general dull feeling.

Every home that has an elderly man or woman should be provided with a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Eight million bottles were bought at drug stores last year. It is a truly wonderful constipation remedy.

TRY IT FREE

Send your name and address and I will send you a free trial bottle of my Syrup Pepsin. Address me Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 513 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois. Every body now and then needs a laxative, and it is well to know the best. Write me today.

You must few men with skill like that of the soda fountain expert. He takes a six-ounce glass and draws just one ounce of Coca-Cola syrup—the precise base for the best drink—service that eliminates waste.

Take a six-ounce glass, not a larger or a smaller one.

One press on the syrup syphon, with the soda man's sense of touch for exact measurements, gives one ounce of Coca-Cola syrup—you know just where it should come to in the glass to be precisely the right amount.

Pull the silver faucet for five ounces of pure, ice-cold carbonated water—with the one ounce of syrup, this quantity fills the glass.

You may take up a bit of the proportion of water with ice, as a small cube or crushed. Stir with a spoon.

Coca-Cola

DELICIOUS AND REFRESHING
THE COCA-COLA COMPANY, Atlanta, Ga.

Done quickly? You bet. The rising bubbles just have time to come to a head that all but o'ertops the brim as the glass is passed over the marble fountain for the first delicious and refreshing sip.

That's the soda fountain recipe for the perfect drink, perfectly served. Coca-Cola is easily served perfectly because Coca-Cola syrup is prepared with the finished art that comes from the practice of a lifetime. Good things from nine sunny climes, nine different countries, are properly combined in every ounce.

It has all been done in flashes. The glass is before you before there is time for conscious waiting. That is answered by the expert with Coca-Cola in its highest degree of deliciousness and refreshment.

Guard against the natural mistakes of too much syrup and too large a glass. Any variation from the ratio of one ounce of syrup to five ounces of water, and something of the rare quality of Coca-Cola is lost; you don't get Coca-Cola at the top of its flavor and at its highest appeal.

Coca-Cola is sold everywhere with universal popularity, because perfect service and not variations is a soda fountain rule.

Experts in Domestic Science
Will Convince You About Mazola

A COURSE of daily cooking lectures and demonstrations is being held in the splendidly appointed Electric Cooking Schoolroom on the 10th floor of the Union Electric building. Lectures start at 2:15 sharp. You are cordially invited to attend.

You could not spend an hour more profitably. Women's clubs, teachers' organizations, and high school domestic science classes especially invited.

For many years you have been hearing about the remarkable economy of Mazola—how it can be used for every cooking and salad purpose. More than seven million American women have proved, over and over again, that Mazola is richer and much more economical than butter in shortening for cake, pie crust and pastry. For Mazola is a 100% pure vegetable oil, and contains absolutely no water—as do butter and lard.

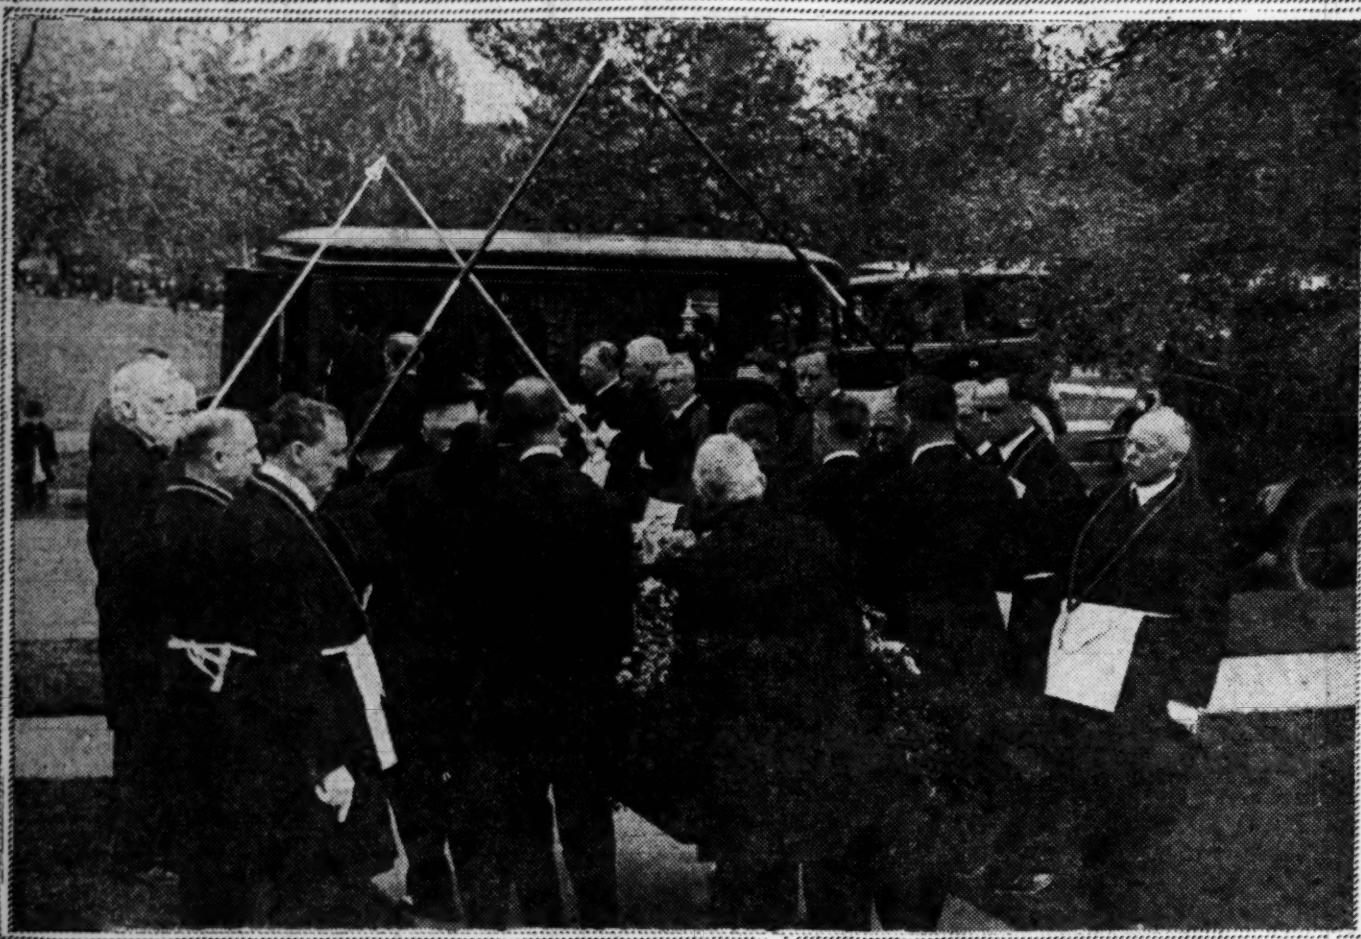

It is better than lard or ordinary cooking fats. Mazola never takes up flavors or odors—nor carries flavors or odors from one food to another. This is because it is heated to a higher temperature without smoking or burning than other cooking fats that the surfaces of the food are crusted over, and the rich juices are kept in.

This is why Mazola can be used over and over—until the last drop is gone—even after frying fish or onions. All you have to do is to strain it. Then you can use it for shortening the most delicate cake.

Many Italian and French people, who know the taste of good salad oil, prefer Mazola, even to the highest priced imported olive oil—it is so sweet and wholesome.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Why Pick on the Landlords?
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Why these continual flings at "profiteering landlords," "rent hogs" and so on?

Why should not landlords get as much rent as they possibly can?
Everybody knows that everybody does it; that it is the recognized rule in business of all kinds to squeeze all you can out of the other fellow.

Everybody knows that the bankers, the coal mine owners, the oil well owners, the steel mill owners and all other prosperous business men are engaged in doing just that thing. Why blame the landlord especially? In fact, why blame anybody?

Where are you going to draw the line between a fair price and an unfair price? Our greatest economists assure us that the only rule of commerce is to exact "all the traffic will bear." There is no right and wrong about it; it is a struggle for the spoils and "Vae victis!" woe to the loser!

A just price! A fair price? Out upon it! There is no such thing. Hold him by the throat and shake him until the money drops out of his pockets; that is the only civilized way of doing it.

I confess that I do not go with the economists. I believe that there is a rule of just price. I believe that civilization is doomed for lack of it; but then I am only one of those execrable Socialists, whom nobody of good sense listens to.

Vacation Schools.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Now that the Board of Education has sufficient funds cannot something be done to increase the number of vacation schools so that all children who desire to attend may do so?

The vacation school in itself is an excellent thing, but it has been the cause of much dissatisfaction and complaint from the parents on account of the number of children that are denied the privilege of attending.

Last summer my little girl was not allowed to attend, although I was very anxious to have her do so. As the principal and teacher explained the case to me, it seems that on account of insufficient funds, the number of children admitted had to be very limited. I wish that other mothers would take this matter up, so that our children may all receive the benefit of the vacation schools. The summer vacation is entirely too long and is a great waste in the child's school life. A few hours' school in the morning is an ideal arrangement for summer. It is not at all hard on the children and helps their education wonderfully.

Let us hope that this summer the opportunity of attending summer school will be granted to every child who wants it.

MRS. E. F. BAXTER.

Anti-Medical Trust.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
My attention was called to an article under the caption "Pro Medical Trust." After carefully reading this article, it becomes quite evident that this letter is written under the guidance of a medical student. The fact is evidently that a "nigger in the wood pile" somewhere as the brilliant writer of this article is ashamed of the article or of his name, as he signs "Pro-Trust."

Now this writer is very strong in his phraseology on good "Red Blooded Americanism" and still acts the part of a "nigger in the wood pile" in dodging behind a signature. The public at large takes little or no notice of the writer, but persons that have not the fore said good "Red Blooded Americanism" and back bone enough to sign their names to their articles.

No one has objections to the party that wrote this supposedly article to attack any medical school that he so wishes to attend or to complete as much pre medical or college courses that he may see fit. Any well thinking person is bound to admit that medicine is an inexact subject the master of which depends on the man's ability to do unexaggerated practice than mere theoretical education.

The writer seems to lay special stress on the ability of the trust colleges and seems to doubt the ability of the other schools to impart knowledge. The professor in these trust colleges are men that graduated from the so-called diploma mills, but it seems that as soon as a man becomes associated with the trust colleges, he becomes automatically endowed with the divine knowledge and assumes self appointed guardianship of the public.

The whole question dissolves itself down to the fact that the governor in signing the medical bill did nothing more than uphold the action of the state legislature, who as representatives of the people, passed a medical bill as precedent for the people as a whole. The bill in many ways does not lower the medical standard of the state, but does meet with the approval of a certain element of political doctors who are satisfied with nothing short of class distinction and who would like to dictate laws pertaining to medical practice in this state. Misourians are known as a "SHOW ME TYPE" and do not need to be awakened, and when the referendum comes we will speak our minds. What do you say?
SHOW ME, ex-soldier,
Dr. Joseph R. Sintel.

HOW TO STOP LYNCHING.

Law-abiding citizens everywhere will approve the purposeful way in which the authorities at Bowling Green, assisted by the State administration, are preparing to investigate the recent lynching and their expressed determination to identify the lynchers, if possible, and prosecute them. It will be noticed, too, that agitation for a State anti-lynching law has been revived, inspired, of course, by the Bowling Green affair.

While efforts in behalf of the law and for the suppression of lawlessness have the sanction of sound public sentiment, certain elemental facts ought, in this connection, to be faced. Without palliating the violence of the Bowling Green mob we believe it to be true that Bowling Green sentiment would judge less harshly the mob's summary vengeance had the criminal accomplished his design. The law is the law and lawlessness is intolerable, but we ought to take the limitations of human nature into account. The intended victim of this negro was saved from outrage and probably brutal death by providential chance. Had no such chance intervened, had the frightful crime been committed, the community judgment which today censures the mob would measurably justify the mob's action. This may be deplorable. It may be a savage throwback. It is a fact, though, lament it as we will, and it is with facts we have to deal.

How shall we deal with them? How may we proceed to uphold the dignity and majesty of the law and put down lawlessness? The one way which promises that result is the fast, sure and adequate functioning of the law.

It ought to be understood that opposition to lynching is not predicated on the belief that the victim does not deserve the punishment meted out to him. It is not to the degree of punishment, but to the manner of its administration, which tends to bring all law into contempt, that intelligent, thoughtful public sentiment excepts. It may be doubted if the public mind makes much of a distinction between the brute who happens to be foiled in his attempt and the one who isn't. If the law could have forfeited the life of the negro, Hammonds, whose guilty intent was established beyond question by circumstances and, later, by confession, there would have been no necessity for mob vengeance. The work of the Bowling Green mob was, in part at least, a protest against the inadequacy of the law's sentence. As such it addresses a challenge to our lawmakers.

The Post-Dispatch submits to the administration the advisability of putting attempted criminal assault in the same legal category of accomplished crime, with the same swift and final penalty. But meanwhile the law must be vindicated by the punishment of the lynchers.

COMMODORE NEWBERRY'S RETURN.

The famous victory of Truman H. Newberry deserves a plumed and bugled hour. It will have it, too, if Washington has any respect for the law of dramatic values as laid down by Aristotle. A committee of arrangements should be appointed at once to see that Newberry's resumption of his expensive seat in the greatest deliberative body on earth shall be a dithyrambic din.

The dominant note of the demonstration will, of course, be nautical. For Newberry's first love, as everybody knows, is the sea and the sea. The Commodore was a sailor before he was a statesman, a Secretary of the Navy before he was a Senator. A Themistocles rather than an Aristides, the great occasion of his return should have a saline tang and tidal roll.

For chairman of the Committee of Arrangements there is, happily, but one candidate—the Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge, whose debt to Newberry is beyond accounting. To the Michigan purchase Mr. Lodge owes the chairmanship of the Foreign Relations Committee and the opportunity for performing what may yet be appraised as the most sinister disservice in American annals. Moreover, there is also a Viking strain in Mr. Lodge. How else could he have created his grandfather the first Secretary of our navy? History may not know it, but that is what Henry Cabot Lodge did for an ancestor, and he, therefore, is the man of all men, by every token of gratitude and congruity, to direct the reception to Detroit's only Commodore.

It may be remarked, too, we think, that no special appropriation of the public funds will have to be made for acclaiming the gallant seaman by which Newberry tacked into Washington instead of Leavenworth. Newberry pays for his glory. This grizzled old tar has a checkbook under his blouse as big as a family Bible. Up with the topsail, then, and fill the lee scuppers to the brim. Sagas and salutes. And let Triton blow his wreathed horn.

THE END OF THE FRATS.

The action of the Board of Education in banning high school fraternities and sororities has been upheld by a court's ruling which was determined, it is presumed, by the testimony of principals and teachers. Those witnesses deposed that such organizations were subversive of discipline and scholarship and made for snobbishness.

With the untoward influences abolished it is to be hoped that discipline and scholarship will improve and snobbishness subside. Possibly such desirable results will follow. Perhaps a questionnaire addressed to the principals and teachers a year from now would show that the things hoped for had come about. But no such inquiry will be conducted. The frats and sororities are dead now, dead as the law of supply and demand, which, according to eminent authority, has attained the defunctitude of a "salted mackerel."

The members of those organizations are doubtless grieved beyond expression at this pronouncement, but they will recover presently. It is not our purpose, however, to moralize on the invincible resilience of youth. This episode has a more profound side. It is educational in a most practical way. It is an experience of a kind which will be encountered very often in the world beyond the high school days.

This is the era of the ban. Verboten has become a fetish. Whatever the majority don't like is proscribed. Preparation for this order of things cannot commence too early. High school students are old enough to be taught to kotow to the thou-shalt-notables.

RENTAL OPPRESSIONS.

The testimony of nearly 80 tenants in the Board of Aldermen's hearing on the rent question offers evidence of grinding hardships in many cases. Not only is there evidence of rapid rent increases of from 50 to 150 per cent, but of brutal conditions in which apartments have been rented to others on short notice in order to obtain excessive rents in short order. In some cases methods resembled auctions, in which the apartments were let to the highest bidder, without consideration for the rights or interests of tenants or of ordinary humanity. There is evidence also of utter neglect of repairs on account of the house shortage, so that repair costs did not figure in the rental increases. In some cases landlords insist upon the signing of long-term leases far in advance of the expiration of leases in order to insure against any fall in rents.

When one considers that it was the homes of people, the only shelter they could find, which were thus banded about greedily and heartlessly, the hardship becomes manifest.

The landlords are yet to be heard from, and, of course, different light may be put upon some of the cases. But the actual increases and the methods used in many cases supply a basis for necessary legislation for the protection of tenants during the present emergency. The house shortage has the effect of monopoly in a necessary of life and the constitutional right of the Government to protect the public from extortion and hardship is not only affirmed by the Supreme Court, but is fundamental in recognized legal principles embodied in the common law.

Is the showing of the Mississippi barge line, as compared with the railroads, due to the fact that there's no "water" in the river?

California has reduced its inheritance tax. There's the place to die.

CONFORMIST LEADERS.

That sage of Emporia, who has shown the world how to be a Kansan and yet not take himself too seriously, has succumbed to the inevitable conclusion that our major political parties, while proper in form, are pawing the air when it comes to principles. In other words, they are shameless trimmers, which, for fear of alienating any class or faction, creed or clique, have cultivated the oracular art of using words for the concealment of meaning rather than its conveyance. Thus they have become merely rival patronage groups, with nothing at stake except the enjoyment of power and emoluments.

It is true, as Mr. White says, that the solution, or at least the power of correction, rests with the individual voter. We have let the politicians and the hereditary partisans—a combination of bushyhead and bonehead—run things. Republicanism has become a religion in the North, as has Democracy in the South. And while campaigners put up a formal battle to get the public to take them seriously, the soul of their appeal is covered in one word—office.

But does the fault lie entirely with the ancestor-worshippers who "vote her straight" and those who, as in the last election, vote principally their resentments?

Mr. White may have yielded half facetiously to the temptation of epigrammatic expression when he said: "I am independent from December to November." During November I am a pretty regular Republican." But it strikes us that this is a very good description of the course habitually followed by men to whom the people have a right to look for leadership.

Mr. Taft and Mr. Hughes, prior to the 1920 campaign, were active advocates of a league to enforce peace more radical than the Versailles covenant. They were for signing up the treaty, as was Mr. Hoover, with reservations or without, until the issue came up in election. Then they all fell in line with the oppositionists, and Mr. Taft, the hitherto energetic pro-league, went so far as to offer a new school of logic, which reasoned that the way to get what you want is to vote against it.

These leaders had their convictions until campaign time. Then they all turned off regular. Which are the more to blame—blind followers or conformist leaders?

The combination of building material and labor prices promises to maintain the status quo of the skyline.

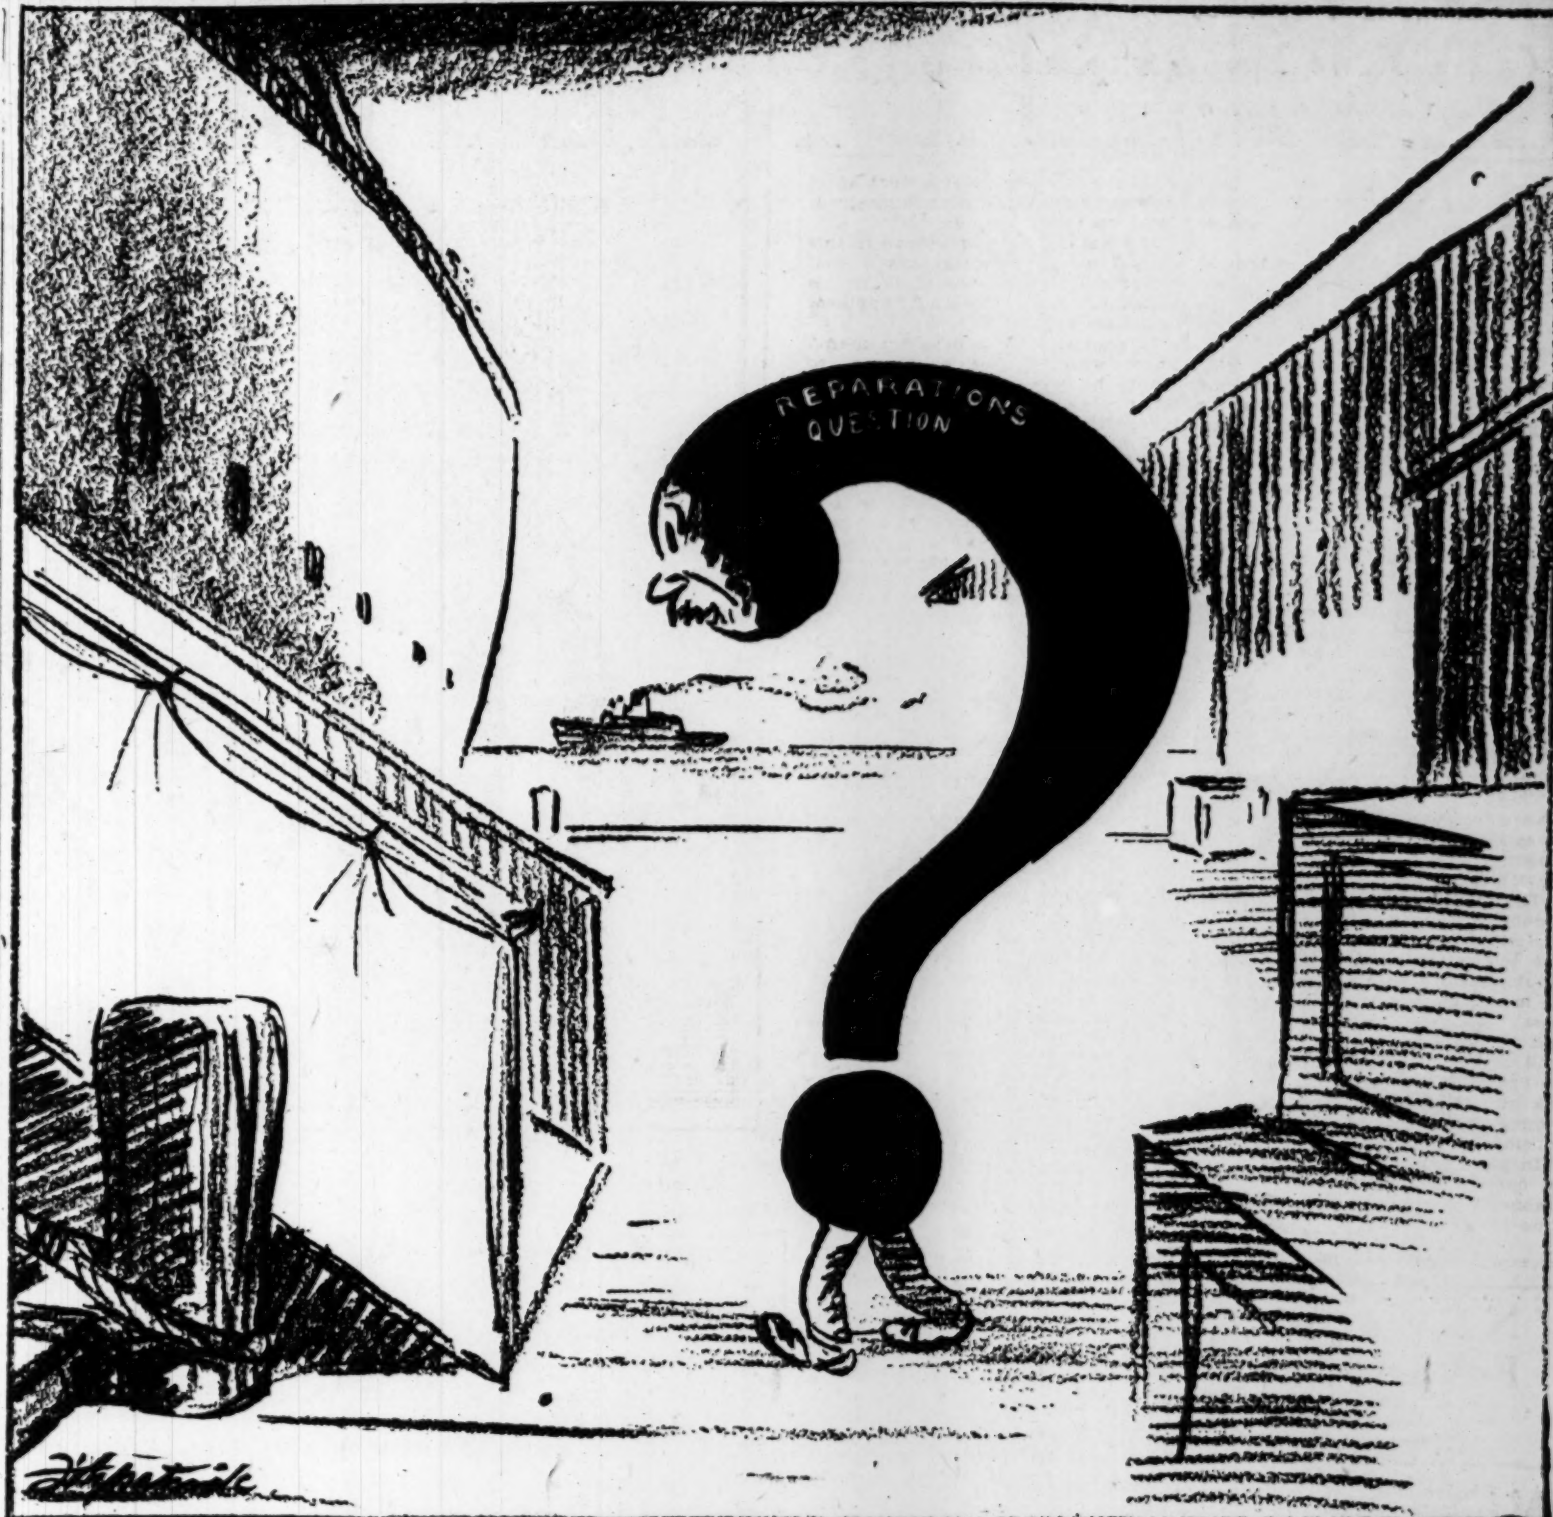

We trust that when Mr. Kahn refers to "the man on the street" he doesn't mean Wall Street.

Hearings are to begin soon on the building materials situation in St. Louis. Then let's have some doling.

LOVED HARMONIES.

SPRING comes, and plays upon a lute, vine-strung;
Her melodies of sap and all outward flung
In little leaf-tones, perchance rainy-sweet,
Like fearful thanks timed to a glad heart's beat.
Or, in warm, drowsy tones, like sunny-eass
Swayed by the vagabondage of a breeze
And hissing "space" and "voyaging in dreams
Of zephyr-ships and petal-rafts and streams.

The flowers, a choral form, which Spring directs;
Their colorature work teams with bright effects!
Rare voices pool or alternate in song—
The golden jonquil-tones rise clear and strong,
But oh, the violet-plaintissimo
Comes sweet and peeping-shy. Now fast, now slow.

Enchanting scales are run in every hue—
Legato and staccato roudelles, too.
Soprano, white, high lily-voice is classed;
While divas bloom in rich tones unsurpassed.
All train toward sweet perfection, which will come,
As harvest-store for each nectarium.

No breeze will lack its cargo of perfume;
And liquid music, bubbling in each bloom
On tap, will bless (vows every petal-note)
Some wee-wing's little, music-thirsty throat.
BETH HEWLETT.

Viscount James Bryce tells us in the current Geographic how great rivers impress him, and what he feels many of us must have felt. He is describing the rivers of Siberia:

"After many hours' journey through this delightful parterre, the traveler sees beneath him in a valley 300 feet deep, the grandest of all the Siberian rivers, the Yenisei, with the city of Krasnoyarsk lying on the slope between the station and the stream."

"This is the finest view of a river from a railroad I can remember to have seen anywhere. The Mississippi at St. Louis and the St. Lawrence at Montreal are as wide, and may have as great a volume; but the banks are comparatively low. Here the coup d'oeil of the bold heights and the mighty stream filling the long hollow that winds away to the north between rocks and thick woods is magnificent."

"Nothing in nature is grander than a great river. It embodies the irresistible strength of the forces of nature and their changeful activity, ever the same and yet ever different, here with a glassy surface, there swirling with deep eddies, making and unmaking islets, here eating away the bank, there piling up sand to enlarge it. It is older than man, and will outlive him; it is a part of his life, serves him in many ways, but it keeps on his coming or going."

"These great Siberian rivers specially impress the imagination, because their sources lie in unexplored snowy solitudes, and from their middle course in habitable lands they descend into a frozen wilderness—terra dominus negata—to find their ending in an icebound sea."

"We had just come from a long voyage up and down another famous river, the Yangtze, singularly unlike its Siberian sisters in this, that it is the central avenue of commerce through a highly cultivated country, passing on its way many cities swarming with people, and bearing on its bosom not only steamships, but fleets of sailing craft such as can be seen nowhere on Rhine or Danube or Mississippi, or even on the Nile, where once they carried all the traffic of the country."

We gather from what Senator Spencer says that there are almost no applicants for the St. Louis Postoffice. He can think of only three, and none of these seems to strike him as very likely to get it. If no one who is competent wants to come forward, Just a Minute will take it. He has a reason for this that cannot fail to impress Senator Spencer. For some time past it has been assumed that there goes with the postmaster in St. Louis a sort of paternal relation to the community. The Postmaster seeks to lead and advise us in such broad fields as those of ethics and civics, and he is by some strange alchemy in the breast of the public officeholder the foremost local exponent of the national genius and our common love of country. This is perhaps admirable, but Just a Minute foresees that Postmasters cannot always keep it up. As both the city and the country grow, and as other people who might share this great task with the Postmaster are shoofed off by his official insignia, either the country or the postoffice will collapse. Just a Minute would like to be Postmaster long enough to get this situation straightened out. We need to understand precisely what the Postmaster is and what he is not. Possibly Senator Spencer will not feel that. Just a Minute has been a good enough Republican to deserve this honor, but the city of St. Louis has been sufficiently Republican to deserve the reform.

Sir: The investigation now being conducted by the Board of Aldermen in the matter of extortionate demands of landlords is developing beyond any reasonable doubt that it is the present salaries paid railroad men that is the cause of the high cost of living. Only one of these complainants thus far has acknowledged that he is a railroad man; but we are inclined to believe that all are—for, who else could pay such prices as are being demanded for living (pardon the expression) quarters?

THOUGHTS OF SPRING.
Horace. Book I. Ode 4.
SPRING'S western breeze dispels the winter cold,
And from the docks the vessels now are drawn;
The plowmen leave their fire and sheep their fold,
And frost no longer glisters on the lawn.
Cytherea leads her choir in Luna's light;
With Nymphs the Graces tripping hand in hand
In modest dances join; while Vulcan bright,
With flaming forge, incites his Cyclop band.

With heads adorned with wreaths from myrtle wove,
Or flowers fresh that fertile fields now bear,
We go to worship Pan in his blest grove—
The sacrifice of lambs or kids to share!

'Tis certain—Death with stalking stride will reign
To knock at lowly huts or mansions grand.
That life is short and hopes remote are vain,
Except the tomb, the Shades, and Pluto's land.

And, Sestius, when you've reached that destined bourne,
You'll set with dice can feastal honors claim;
Then, too, your son beloved by youths, you'll mourn,
Young Lycidas, who'll soon the maidens' hearts inflame!

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

OUR MILK SUPPLY.

From the Survey.
IN connection with a comprehensive inquiry into the milk supply of St. Louis, Mo., the Public Welfare Committee of that city has come upon some perturbing facts. So far as they deal with pasteurization, the sanitary condition of dairies and the methods of sale from open receptacles, the facts found are not alarming, and the evils disclosed have already effectively been tackled by the committee itself; while the Federal Department of Agriculture has been induced to carry out a thorough survey of the approximately 7000 dairy farms within a radius of 100 miles from which St. Louis receives 80 per cent of its milk supply. But an examination of the prices charged to distributor and consumer, compared with those of other cities, showed a discrepancy that is not easily explained. The subject is important because in St. Louis as elsewhere the children of the poorer classes are often, owing to the high price of fresh milk, brought up on condensed and store milk, which, as all authorities are agreed, is no adequate substitute. What really happened in St. Louis and is always happening is that at a time of rising cost of production the consumer is asked for much more than the actual rise; at times of falling cost he is only grudgingly and belatedly given the fall in price to which he is entitled. Differences in overhead expenses and in carelessness on the part of the public in the handling of bottles explain to some extent the variation of distributing costs. Both sources of excessive cost can be eliminated. But the main cause is excessive competition, which seems to be especially developed in St. Louis, and almost duplicates the essential cost of delivery.

I. W. W. WAR-TIME CASES.

From the Nation.
CLASS hatred, not justice, is served when 73 Industrial Workers of the World, including "Bill" Haywood, go behind Federal prison bars, some on sentences of 20 years, as a consequence of the United States Supreme Court's refusal to review their convictions. Largely because of the lowly industrial and social status of most of its members, the sincerity of their beliefs, the isolation of their lives, and many misconceptions of their philosophy of life, the I. W. W. have been peculiarly subject to persecution by the crowd hysteria of the so-called "respectable element" in this country. The I. W. W. convictions in 1918 were under war legislation now no longer in effect and on evidence that their lawyers declare was illegally obtained by the Department of Justice. The imprisonment of these men now can serve no practical end, but will embitter thousands against the judicial system of the country. Their case is another argument for a pardon of all political prisoners.

THE AGE LIMIT FOR WORK.

From the New York World.
THERE is no probability that Postmaster-General Hays will get a Carnegie medal for talking the arbitrary age limit out of the retirement order for postoffice employees. Yet it is quite possible that by this act he has qualified as a life-saver. Under the order as it stood, men had to retire at 65, women at 62. Among the everyday busy people of the world are men and women carrying much greater burdens of years, doing their share of the world's work as ably and eagerly as any younger workers. For many of these to let go of activity would be a step just ahead of letting go of life itself. Economic advantage there always is in the retention of experience in the public service. That there is a phase of the humane in keeping veterans at work is a detail which often is overlooked, but which we like to think was in the mind of Mr. Hays.

GIVING BACK GIFTS

By Sophie Irene Loeb

"GIVE back my present," was the cry of a young man who brought his former fiancée into court.

He claimed he had spent $389.50 on an engagement ring and other presents, and made a plea to the court that he wanted them all returned.

The court denied the request. Some young people write to me, asking, "Did the young man have a right to the presents since the girl broke the engagement?"

The rights in the matter must be decided in every single case and by the parties themselves. As a general proposition, however, I cannot appreciate a young man with any self-respect asking for the return of his presents.

After all, such gifts are given at times when everything is joyous between two people and as tokens of their love.

The material side of such trinkets is not thought of at the time, and if it is, it is usually with the consideration that the things are not half good enough.

There isn't anything that a young man would not lavish on the girl he loves. He has as much pleasure in making the present as she has in receiving it.

The spirit of happiness is of paramount importance.

Now, when love grows cold and the whole matter is at an end, it would seem to me the nicest thing to do is to let the presents go with the past. A man only cheapens himself in the estimation of the girl as well as the people who know when he shows such a sordid spirit as to ask for something that had cost him money when money was the least consideration at the time.

In plain parlance, he should rather consider that he has had his "money's worth" for the period of time in which he was happy. And even if he hasn't, he is a poor sport to want to make up to himself in "cold cash."

If I were the young woman in this case, I would consider myself well rid of a man who would count his moments of pleasure and happiness in dollars and cents.

In contrast to this case is a man I know who married a woman, to whom he gave everything he had. After a few years this woman fell in love with another man, and frankly told her husband.

Not only this, but she also informed him that the man whom she learned to love had nothing to give her, could not even support her, and she was most miserable.

The husband was a big man—that is, he had a fine spirit—and although he was devoted to his wife he could see her side of it. He not only made it possible for her to get the other man, but helped to finance the situation, so that his wife would be happy.

I asked him why he did this. He answered: "Because I have had the happiest years of my life with this woman. As I look back upon them, they meant so much to me, much more than the paltry bit of money that I am giving toward her welfare. If her love has changed, that is no reason for me to take advantage of the material matters in the situation."

This man was broad-minded. He has a big soul. He has not stopped to sum up how much his love cost him in money, like the other young man, nor does he want it back, but would rather add to it.

He does not regret that he has paid for his memories, but is willing to pay more.

Such is the stuff of which real men are made. As Shakespeare says, "Lovers' gifts wax poor, when love proves unkind."

'Tis a sorry sort of man who always wants his money back.

NEW AND ORIGINAL FASHION DESIGNS

By Mildred Lodewick

WHEN a suit used to symbolize expert tailoring, this line that were almost austere, manly collars and pockets we could not offer it to the young girl. But today the suit ranks with the frock, and indeed a keen rivalry between the two is inspired. Of course the tailored suit of severe lines will always hold its ground, being especially suited to certain types of women for practical wear, but the suit has broadened its scope and may be entirely lacking in tailoring, with a nonchalance that only a seamstress could achieve. Youth can then call the suit to service, and young girls like them for the spring better than they do frocks and coats. One that I am sure will appeal to many is offered in my design here. The fabric may be light weight serge, homespun or some other light weight novelty woolen fabric, or if desired for dressy wear satin could be employed.

The straight little jacket is slashed around the shoulders and back, with a cording to finish it, and a slight fullness appearing from under it. Thus the sleeves are made wide at the base, hanging softly with no cuff, while the pocket hangs with just enough fullness to give a slight flare. A pleasing bit of elaboration appears in the form of patches of embroidery, which are placed where pockets might be. Indeed, the slashes could be placed at the top of them to accommodate pockets if desired. The jacket fastens at the neck with buttons linked together, and is completed with a small rolling collar. The skirt which accompanies this jacket is slashed at the hip line, with fullness appearing from under it, with the same effect as it does around the shoulders of the jacket.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND.

"I LOVE you" is still the sweetest sentence in the English language—but it has long since ceased to be a life sentence.

The world is surely growing younger! No man under 60 ever speaks of his "courtship days," as though they were past and over with, nowadays; and no woman under 60 mopes on her romantic "yesterdays," so long as she has the strength to plan a sentimental "tomorrow."

Getting married is as simple and easy as ordering things over the telephone; getting a divorce, as complicated and soul-wearing as taking them back to the shop and trying to exchange them.

When a man begins calling his wife new and pretty pet names, it does not fill her with tenderness, but with suspicion, as to where he got the practice.

Solomon lived happily with 700 wives—out there were no "Blue Laws" in those days to keep him sticking around the house all day, Sunday; no dry laws to make him grouchy at dinner, and no "in-laws" to drop in and spoil his week-ends.

After a love spat, a woman can more easily forgive a man for cutting her dead than for treating her with perfectly cheerful amiability.

Every newly married couple fancy they are going to write a brand-new chapter in the Book of Love, until they discover that there is no phase of the subject on which Adam and Eve did not hold the first copyright.

Science has discovered that the brain of a new-born infant can be modified to that of a full-grown man, without making any perceptible difference in his mentality. But, dear me! Any married woman could have told them that!

"Why do you prefer this waiter?"

"I never order too much fattening food with him before me as a horrible example."

HOME ECONOMICS
By Mrs. Elizabeth Kent.

LEMONS.

FEW of us use enough fruit, especially in winter. Therefore, it behooves us to study the winter fruits and make all possible use of them. Lemons can usually be had and are of great dietetic value. They contain from 8 to 9 per cent of citric acid, and from 10 to 12 per cent of solids, in which are valuable mineral salts. Fruit is not nutritious to any great extent, but it is a necessary adjunct of the diet, as an aid to digestion. Lemons are a time-honored remedy for torpid liver, and are much used nowadays in all throat and lung affections.

For children lemonade is an acceptable drink, no less in winter than in summer. Many a child coming in from school, hungry and thirsty at 4 o'clock would be the better for a glass of lemonade and two graham crackers—and need never be coaxed to take them. If the syrup is put up ready in small bottles, a child can get it for himself and his playmate. Children will obey a definite rule in a matter of that kind, if put on their own responsibility. One glass and two biscuits each comes to be regarded as a law of the Medes and Persians.

For the syrup, boil a cupful of sugar with a pint of water, 12 minutes, add a third of a cupful of lemon juice and bottle. Dilute to taste with cold water when served.

Milk sherbet is one of the best possible desserts, best in flavor and consistency, and most wholesome and digestible. Mix the juice of three lemons with a cupful and a half of sugar, stirring constantly and adding slowly four cupfuls of milk. The white of an egg beaten and added just before freezing, makes the sherbet stiffer, smoother and a little more nourishing.

UNCOMMON SENSE

By JOHN BLAKE

Analyze Your Mistakes.

WHEN you make a mistake, find out why you made it. Think it over a few minutes. Fix in your mind the manner in which it happened. Be ashamed of it, if it is a bad mistake. Scare yourself about it, if it is a dangerous one.

The child never forgets the mistake he makes when he puts his finger in the fire. That mistake he has to think about for a long time afterward. One of the kind is always enough for him.

Admiral Peary's Eskimo dogs made the mistake of eating all that was given them when they were encamped in the Arctic regions waiting for one of his dashes to the Pole. Apparently they remembered that mistake when the food ran out and some of their number had to be eaten.

When the survivors of the pack returned to America they were very sparing of the food that was given them, and buried the remainder. More than that, they scoured the neighborhood for food to bury. They had had time to think of their mistakes.

Most people have much the same sort of work to do every working day. Those who do not think over their mistakes continue to make them and for the most part they always stay where they are.

Men who make the same mistakes twice never get the confidence of an employer.

Those who think about their mistakes and find out ways to eliminate them are those who get along.

It is better to discover your own mistakes than to wait for the boss to discover them. Discover them early, and you can do without them the next time.

Go over your work. If it is not up to the mark that you ought to make, you have either made important mistakes or wasted time, which in itself is an important mistake.

Think about that. Let it sink into your soul. Think how it held your work back, and what the reputation of it will do to your life's work.

This may not contribute to your repose the night you are thinking about it, but it will make you sleep better for many a night to come. Perfection is the absence of mistakes. We cannot any of us achieve it, but we can all achieve a pretty fair substitute by cutting mistakes to the minimum.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Boxer Becomes Independent.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Don't judge a stranger by his looks
Lest they should prove to be deceiving
The stupid-looking may be smart
In ways almost beyond believing.

—Prickly Porky.

HAVING succeeded in getting his own breakfast, and a very good one at that, Boxer felt quite set up, as the saying is. He felt cheery. That is to say, he felt big, self-important, independent. For a little cub who had cried most of the night from loneliness and fear, Boxer showed a surprising change. The light of day, a full stomach and the feeling that he was able to take care of himself had made a new Boxer of that little cub. Anyway, he felt so and thought so.

"I'm not afraid of anybody or anything," boasted the foolish little Bear to himself, as he wandered along through the Green Forest. "I'm glad I left home. I'm glad I am out in the Great World. I guess I know about all there is to know. Anyway, I guess I know all there is to know."

As he said this Boxer stood up and swelled himself out and looked so funny that Prickly Porky the Porcupine, who happened along just then, just had to chuckle down his side, and this is something that Prickly Porky seldom does. "That little rascal must have run away from his mother, and he thinks he is smart and knows all there is to know. I don't believe that even Mother Bear could tell him anything just now. She would be wasting her breath. He needs a lesson or two in practical experience. I believe I'll give him one, just for his own good."

There was something almost like a twinkle in Prickly Porky's usually dull eyes, as he slowly waddled straight toward Boxer. Boxer heard the rustic rustle of Prickly Porky's tail dragging through the leaves and turned to see what was coming. What he saw was, of course, the stupidest-looking fellow in all the Green Forest.

It was the first time Boxer had seen Prickly Porky and he had no idea who he was. Boxer stood up and stared in the rudest and most impolite manner. He wasn't afraid. This fellow was no bigger than he, and he was too stupid-looking and too slow to be dangerous.

"Step aside, little cub, step aside and let me pass," said he.

Boxer was standing in a narrow little path, and Prickly Porky was coming up this little path straight toward him. One of them would have to step aside for the other. It didn't enter Boxer's head that he should be that one. As Prickly Porky drew near Boxer growled a low, rumbling growl, rumbling growl that Boxer could manage. It was hard work for Prickly Porky to keep from laughing right out when he heard it.

But he acted just as if he didn't hear it. He kept right on. Then he pretended to see Boxer for the first time. "Step aside, little cub, step aside and let me pass," said he. To be called "little cub," just when he was feeling so important and grown up, was more than Boxer could stand. His little eyes grew red with anger.

"Step aside yourself, if you don't want to get hurt."

Prickly Porky didn't step aside. He kept right on coming. He didn't hurry, and he didn't appear to be in the least afraid. It was plain that he expected Boxer to get out of the way. Boxer drew back his lips and showed all his little white teeth. Then he slowly reached out one paw and prepared to strike Prickly Porky on the side of the head if he came any nearer.

The Incorruptible One

By Mildred Gram
(Copyright, 1921.)

JOHN PETERSON was disturbed. His bushy yellow eyebrows were drawn together in a terrific frown. His clear blue eyes—eyes usually as serene as a summer sea—were troubled. He walked majestically away from the Esplanade, followed a narrow, winding street for a short distance, and entered his own doorway with a sigh of relief. It was blistering hot, so he went through the house to the veranda, where there was at least a breath of air and the green shadow of tropical trees and bushes.

"Queer," he said under his breath. "Mighty queer. As like as two pennies. And yet—20 years."

He put his big straw hat on the floor and stretched himself at length in a wicker armchair. Perspiration stood on his brow, and his hands trembled. He kept licking his lips as if they tasted of salt. But his huge body was motionless, and he gazed steadily into the brilliant, tangled garden, not as if he were seeing the taxile flowers and prodigious palms, but as if his eyes were fixed on some invisible scene that fascinated and terrified him.

"Queer," he muttered again. "As like as two pennies."

And yet nothing out of the ordinary had happened to John Peterson. He had gone out following his usual custom, at 11 o'clock, and had strolled as far as the Piazza Indipendenza, keeping always in the shadow of the houses. He was very imposing in his white linen clothes—a huge, blond fellow, bearded like a Viking, his eyes as blue as ice beneath their shaggy brows. The shouting drivers of dilapidated cabs swerved sharply out of the way to avoid him. Barefooted moccasins gave him the narrow sidewalk with a suggestive courtesy. Big-eyed, black-haired native girls looked shyly at him as he passed. All this was exactly as usual. Peterson was accustomed to being admired. Was he not the incorruptible banker of Magella, a rich citizen, and a figure of national importance?

He began the day, like all other days, with a glass of brandy at the Cafe Albion. Various dapper, copper-colored young men tipped their straw hats in his direction, and some white-haired royalist officials, sweating in frock coats and gloves, bowed very low as they passed. His table, Peterson "stood in" with the Royals. They had been in power for several years, and it began to look as if President Diego were a permanent fixture in the old white palace which fronted so conspicuously on the Piazza. Magella was growing great. The Fairchild company, an American syndicate, controlled the fabulous mines of the Santa Christina. And a Yankee railway was pushing, across the campaign, across the half-deserted interior of Concordia, linking Magella to the rest of the world. Decidedly it was best to stand in with the party in power. Peterson handled the modest fortunes that were being made by Diego followers; he even accepted of bankers the world over, the savings of native workmen, European settlers, that army of nondescripts which had drifted into the sleepy little republic in the wake of North American capital.

PETERSON had lived in Magella 20 years and had walked the narrow white line of moral rectitude. He had married a Magellan woman—a dark-skinned beauty who had grown fat with happiness and who smoked big, black cigars. Their daughter, Cora, was the prettiest girl in Magella and the pride of Peterson's heart. She was as fair as her father—a tall, white-skinned, golden-haired girl with eyes the color of gentians. It was said that every young man in Magella was in love with her. Sighing suitors were always parading back and forth beneath her windows, preening themselves, hoping that the blond Cora would feel the pang of passion. But Peterson snubbed all would-be wooers and the cool, snow-white Cora refused to be charmed by dapper, brown dandies who had so little imagination that they made love to her by calling attention to themselves. Cora had her own conception of love and lovers. All day she sat in the little garden at the back of her father's house, dreaming, woman fashion, of the man who would win her in spite of herself.

Peterson had been in very good humor that morning at the Cafe Albion. He sat for a long time over his glass of brandy, his thoughts busy with the delectable future. And if the dignified Royalists who bowed so cordially when they passed his table could have known what he was thinking, there would have been a revolution, or a civil war, in Magella before night. But Peterson's eyes were as guileless as a child's. He was outwardly as mild as a milk-fed god—majestic, jovial, and incorruptible.

HE paid for the drink and strolled across the city to the Esplanade, his thoughts still busy with the future. John Peterson had something up his sleeve for himself and Cora. His wife didn't matter—she was an unthinking, senseless mound of flesh in a calico print wrapper. He had loved her for a brief, tropic month of moonlight and madness, a long time ago. Twenty years ago. Now there was Cora, tall, fresh-skinned—a goddess in this land of little swarthy women with straight black hair! And Peterson did not propose that she should stay in Magella forever. A little longer. Only a little longer. Then he would take her to Paris, Vienna, Berlin, London. They would go to great hotels. They would go to the races, to Monte Carlo, to the gay watering places. Cora would wear European clothes, and men of fashion would stare at her. He, Peterson, would stroll along the boulevards as he was strolling now, only that upon his head, in place of a broad-brimmed straw hat, he would wear a shining stovepipe, and his majestic body would be clothed, not in crumpled linen, but in broadcloth, excellently tailored. There would be money in his pockets, and Magella, this land of blazing sky, towering mountains, palms, revolutions, and purple sea, would be erased from his memory like a miserable dream. There were ways.

For instance: The Royalists might be very much in power, but there were others who aspired to fit into the comfortable niches now filled by Diego and his followers. The Nationalists, for example. Beneath the placid surface of daily life in Magella a political volcano was seething. Its center was the Cafe Nazionale. Its inmost heart was Pedro Cammarillo, half-breed Spaniard. Some day there was going to be an eruption. The red-hot revolutionists would blot out Diego's Government like a shower of lava and burning cinders. Then there would be an end to Yankee influence in the republic. Cammarillo, the Liberator, would occupy the white palace on the piazza. The railway would belong to the good country; the fabulous wealth of the Fairchild mines would pour into the national treasury, where it belonged. All of those smiling, frock-coated Royalists who had bowed to John Peterson in the Cafe Albion would be shot against the sun-baked walls of the fortress or thrown into damp dungeons beneath San Martino, or exiled to a life of meditation and remorse in the desolate provinces of the interior.

All these things were scheduled to happen quickly. Peterson smiled under his golden beard when he looked about him at the unsuspecting people. Particularly he smiled when he passed the American Consulate and his eyes fell upon the flag which hung in languid folds above the doorway. The American Consul, young Fairchild, and a handful of Yankee engineers were all that stood between Diego and the silent, purposeful, ruthless army of Nationalists which had already flocked to Cammarillo's side.

THE Consul and Pug Fairchild went into the Consulate as Peterson passed. He tipped his wide-brimmed hat to them and looked them straight in the eyes with a glance both benign and inscrutable. "A glorious day, gentlemen."

Pug and the Consul uncovered reverently before the incorruptible banker. But when he had turned the corner, stalking slowly in the shadow of the houses, Pug whistled, glanced up at the cloudless sky, frowned, and said briefly: "Whiskers!"

Peterson went on, to the Esplanade. The Liberta had come in from Porto Bio, bringing a cargo of misadventure, canned goods, photographs, and a conglomerate assortment of adventurers in the modern style—jewelry merchants, tintype artists, life insurance peddlers, professional soldiers and professional loafers. The first boatload was coming ashore, propelled across the glittering harbor by a sweating crew of half-naked natives. Peterson went down on the beach and watched the landing; he liked to come into contact with the great outside world, the world he had dreamed of for 20 years. Some day he and Cora were going aboard the Liberta, to sail forever out of the harbor, northward to crowded, glittering cities, to civilization, to pleasure. They were almost done with this land of sunshine and languor. They were almost done with the deadly monotony of the honest years.

Just then John Peterson caught sight of a young man who was in charge of one of the Liberta's boats. He was standing upright, shouting to the oarsmen as the overloaded craft shot through the surf and plunged nose first into the white sand of the beach. A tall, sandy-haired youngster in a blue flannel shirt and khaki trousers—Peterson looked at him and felt his heart leap in his breast.

"As like as two pennies," he thought, licking his lips.

Roquefort Cheese Dressing

MASH one-half cup of Roquefort cheese, stir until creamy, gradually adding six tablespoons of olive oil. Season with one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon paprika and a few grains of cayenne; then slowly stir in two tablespoons of vinegar. If a richer dressing is desired omit two tablespoons of the oil and beat in two tablespoons of thick cream. This dressing is particularly good served with all varieties of lettuce, tomatoes or cucumbers. It should never be served with meat, fish or crustacean salads.

WHY should your home be any longer without the cheering influence of music? A small down payment delivers to you this handsome Pathe Phonograph and your choice of $25 worth of records. And then a few dollars a week pays for it. Could any arrangement be simpler or easier than that?

No phonograph can give you more enjoyment than the Pathe. It plays all makes of records perfectly. The clarity and splendor of its tone leaves nothing to be desired. And it requires no bothersome changing of needles, for it has no needle. Instead it has a tiny sapphire ball as a reproducing point; and this sapphire ball never wears out.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

SLIGHT ALTERATIONS.

Listen my children and you shall hear
Of the midnight ride of Paul Revere,
Who paused at Salem to pitch his camp
And met with a beautiful blonded vamp,
Who fell on his neck and cried and sighed,
And made him give up his projected ride,
So when the British came up the bay
All of the farmers were in the hay,
And that is the way the Red-coats won
The well-known battle of Lexington.

Aha! I fancy I hear you sneer,
That you never had heard that Paul Revere
Could be such a base Lothario.
Well, that of course may be the fact
But it isn't my purpose to be exact
For this is a screen scenario.

II.

"Priscilla," young John Alden said,
"Old Standish is simply cracked to wed,
He's glad you up and thinks you'll do
And he's sent me here to propose to you."
"Great stuff!" responded the lovely Jane,
"His whiskers are queer and his face is plain
But I far would rather the future brave
As an old man's pet than a young man's slave.
So tell old Myles I am for him strong,
And say! Did you bring the ring along?"

"What's that? What's that?" Do I hear you say,
"Priscilla would never behave that way;
She wasn't a flibberty-gibberty!"
She was far from that, as well, I know
But in making a film for a movie show
An author must have some liberty!

SILLY!

It is absurd to say that religion is dying out because of the growth of the incredulity. There are simply millions of people who still believe in
"good" catalogues.

STRICTLY NONPARTISAN.

There is going to be no more politics in the Postoffice. The best qualified man in every town can be the Postmaster, provided only that he is a good Republican.
